LBJ's Domestic Program in Trouble

Claim Senators Being Prodded To Support War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a critic of the Vietnam war, says some senators from states with big defense industries are feeling the prod to support the war, but he does not pinpoint who is doing the prodding.

"I don't say they don't believe what they're saying" about the war, Aiken said in an interview. "But some of our boys are under pressure." He did not elaborate.

Two other war critics said Thursday in separate statements that a "military-industrial complex" was dominant in U.S. affairs.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said in Senate debate on the billion-dollar programs for space and development of a "large military-industrial complex" dominates Congress.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., like Fulbright and Aiken a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, urged Senate conferees to stand firm on cutbacks in U.S. military aid.

Officials Fight City's Plan To Buy Water Works

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Two Lake County commissioners have promised legal action if Mentor does not withdraw its proposal to purchase the Ohio Water Service.

Mentor Council has considered hiring a consultant to study the value of Ohio Water service facilities in Mentor. The council is not pleased with the water rates.

One of the opposing commissioners, John Hadden, said Thursday even if the plant was doubled in capacity, it would not be able to serve Mentor's future needs. He is supported in his contentions by commissioner Robert B. Fulton.

"There are other areas depending on that facility for water," Hadden said. "Mentor would consider Mentor first and the outlying areas would be out of luck."

OSU Employees Defy Injunction; Strike Continues

By DON BANDY
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

Hundreds of defiant nonteaching employees at Ohio State University voted Thursday night to continue an illegal strike with hopes of upsetting normal operations on the huge campus and force the university to meet their demands.

The employees chose to defy a court injunction ordering them back to work. They also were warned in registered letters sent by the university they will be fired if they remain on strike.

But picket lines were re-established Thursday night following a meeting of Local 138, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The university said it would have no comment on its next step until after officials meet this morning with attorneys. Ohio State has granted an injunction Thursday by Common Pleas Judge Myron B. Gessman ordering the strikers to return.

"We're ready to stay out as long as necessary," said Michael Fuscato, local president. "We're prepared to take our stand and stay with it and even go to jail if necessary."

The university said the strike—in its second day—is illegal under Ohio's Ferguson Act banning strikes by public employees.

University officials said, however, they have already made plans to continue functioning as usual for the more than 37,000 students on the campus near downtown Columbus.

Some students living in dormitories have been "assigned" extra chores because custodial employees are among the strikers. They have been given duties to sweep the floors and others to empty wastebaskets.

The union said 3,000 employees joined the strike Thursday, but the university placed the figure at around 1,000. The union said 1,600 of the school's 6,600 non-academic employees are union members.

Five of the eight dormitory cafeterias were closed Thursday. Frederick Stecker, director of public relations for Ohio State, said this was preplanned.

The only other immediate effect the strike has had so far, one school official said, was "some reductions in outside deliveries to the campus."

The striking workers have asked for support from the students, urging them not to attend classes and join the picket lines. "We're fighting for self-survival," said Fuscato.

The employees are demanding a 10 per cent pay raise, binding arbitration of disputes, paid hospitalization, free parking and free meals for food service workers.

The university said it would cost $5.5 million to meet the union package and student fees would have to be raised $80 a year. This is on top of a $15-per-quarter fee increase already requested by the university to meet other needs.

Ohio OEA Convenes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A three-day session of the Ohio Education Association (OEA) begins here today. Members will discuss how educator organizations can be represented in the school decision-making process.

OEA executive secretary Stayner F. Brighton will be the first speaker to address educators.

DUPONTS GAGGED AND ROBBED — Miami millionaire Willis H. DuPont, his wife and one of their two children, are seated at a table in their mansion, where five leucely masked gunmen barged in, bound and gagged them and their servants, and escaped with DuPont's $1.5 million coin collection and other loot. The bandits fled in the DuPont car. The boy is their son Lamar.

Reward Offered for Return Of DuPont Coin Collection

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An heir to the E.I. du Pont de Nemours wealth wired his seaside mansion four ways to guard against kidnapping of his sons but today he was offering a substantial reward to get back a fortune in coins stolen while the alarms were turned off.

A team of five masked bandits smashed a door at the Willis Harrington du Pont mansion early Thursday and took a collection of U.S. coins valued by Du Pont at $500,000 and the Russian Prince George Mikhailovitch collection valued by the Smithsonian Institution at about $1.5 million.

The true value of the one-of-a-kind Mikhailovitch collection to others may be underlined by the stormy history of the coins, a prize of the Russian Revolution later stolen from the Bolsheviks.

Du Pont, 31, his Spanish wife Mireia, 29, their oldest son Victor, 4, and two servants were tied up. Another son, 1-year-old Lamont, was left asleep.

"They came right into the bedroom and shoved their weapons at us and said, 'We want your money... tell us where it is or we'll blow your brains out,'" Du Pont said.

Mrs. Du Pont was told to open the bedroom safe.

"I was so nervous I couldn't remember the combination she said. 'They told me: You better remember or we'll put a bullet through your head.'"

The bandits took $4,000 in cash and $50,000 in jewels from that safe, dropping a $10,000 bill on the bedroom floor, then led Du Pont downstairs to his den where he opened the large vault containing about 500 Russian coins and about 6,500 U.S. coins.

"How much are they worth?" one of the thieves asked.

"Maybe $400,000," Du Pont said he replied.

"Then maybe you'd be willing to buy them back for $200,000," the thief shot back.

When agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the case, Du Pont refused to give further information to newsmen but Miami Police Captain C. O. Huttee said Du Pont seemed willing to pay the $200,000 ransom to get back his collection.

Thursday night an attorney for Du Pont announced what he termed only "a substantial reward... no questions asked" for return of the collections. Private detective William Stanton sat by a special telephone (759-0293) and opened post office Box 347, Miami, Fla., to deal with the bandits.

"They've got a real, hot potato on their hands," Stanton said. "There is no insurance. At the present time, I have been ordered to negotiate and find out what they want." He said he had received no calls from the bandits.

State Delays Action in Truck Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The office of Gov. James A. Rhodes reported Friday that the attorney general's office will adopt a "wait and see" attitude before taking part in any court action in the strike by independent steel haulers.

A representative of the attorney general's office was to have gone into federal court in Cleveland today to join the national steelhaulers in asking for a federal court injunction to prohibit strike violence.

John McElroy, the governor's aide, said the Jobs' Act under which the proposed action was to have been taken, "does not now seem the instrument to provide the proper grounds for action in this case."

"The Hobbs Act is a federal criminal statute providing penalties for interfering with commerce by threats or violence."

Much of the decision not to go to federal court at once, McElroy said, is based on what he believes to be an overall improvement in the strike situation.

He said Thursday night was relatively "uneventful" in Ohio, that new tactics of the Highway Patrol in deployment of forces has helped ease the situation, and that the steel haulers themselves are adopting some new tactics whereby some independent non-striker merely pull their trucks off the road and report to their offices and thus become eligible for time and a half overtime.

McElroy said he understood that the strikers are no longer aiming at any truck traffic except the non-striking steel haulers, and that incidents of violence are dropping off.

One Close Shave He'll Never Forget

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Raymond L. Perkins, 22, had, you might say, a close shave as he was driving to class at Southern Colorado State College Thursday.

While using a battery powered shaver, he lost control of his car, which crossed the street, knocked down two no parking signs, crossed the street again, jumped the curb and stopped in a motel parking lot.

'Test of Wills' Over Economy

Johnson, Congress Firm for Demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants a curb on high-priced government programs in the future as well as an immediate spending cut, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills said today.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in a statement that is the meaning of his committee's 20 5 vote Tuesday to delay action on the tax increase measure. The committee decided to postpone action until the President and Congress reach an understanding on spending.

"It is clear that the point of the protest has been missed," the Arkansas Democrat said.

"Spending cuts in this fiscal year or in 1969, welcome as they would be, are not really the central objective."

Mills spoke out a day after President Johnson, at an impromptu news conference, renewed his insistence that Congress act on his request for a 10 per cent surtax on individual and corporate income taxes.

He disagreed with Congress' contention that he should first show firm plans for spending cuts.

Despite the President's plea and a federal freeze on Congress' pet public works project, Congress shows no signs of increasing taxes before spending is slashed.

The administration added a new ingredient in the weeks-long test of wills between the President and Congress by suspending indefinitely some $3.5 billion worth of military building and civil public works programs.

The freeze, announced by the Defense Department, came as Johnson again laid responsibility for budget cutting on the congressional doorstep and said taxes should be raised to stifle inflation.

The public works freeze drew praise from Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, senior Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, as "the kind of thing that's required."

To some congressional observers the freeze appeared an indication Johnson is beginning to yield to pressure that he take responsibility for cutting back or eliminating programs popular with hometown voters.

The stalemate over who should cut spending involves in part the determination by Congress not to be saddled with the blame for such cuts.

Byrnes cautioned, however, that the freeze could be lifted at any time since the money for such Army Engineers civil projects as flood-control dams, dikes and harbor improvements already has been appropriated.

"We'll need some assurances this isn't just window dressing,"

Police, Firemen Fail To Report

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — This village was without police and fire protection today after patrolmen and firemen started "calling in ill" Thursday, authorities reported.

Failure to report was blamed on police and firemen demands for pay increases and added benefits which have not been met by council, officials said.

Meanwhile the town's two local funeral homes have agreed to handle emergency calls until the protection problem is solved. Police Chief D. Richard Simpson and Fire Chief Harold Hyland were both on duty Friday, but without the personnel to assure adequate operations.

The police department is made up of the chief, assistant chief and five patrolmen. The fire department has a chief, assistant chief, one fireman and numerous volunteer personnel.

Negotiations between the police and firemen and village officials have been under way several months. Acting City Manager Marvin DeGrave said the village made its final offer Tuesday night of approximately 4 per cent increase for the chiefs and 3 per cent for patrolmen and firemen. The police and firemen are asking an approximate 10 per cent increase.

he said in an interview. Johnson's renewed contention that Congress shouldn't delay action on his tax hike proposal until spending has been cut left apparently unmoved Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee.

"Unless there is substantial cutting in spending programs, I don't see how we can justify a tax increase," said Mills.

Byrnes took a harder line. "The President apparently hasn't got the message. The committee and the House sent a very clear message that spending must be cut."

Byrnes said the President determines spending priorities in sending Congress the budget. "We need a new schedule of spending priorities and he better send us one soon," he warned.

Johnson told a hastily called news conference Thursday that failure to enact his tax boost proposal would feed an inflationary spiral he said would ultimately cost taxpayers far more than higher taxes.

He cited increased interest rates on short-term Treasury bills and high home mortgage and personal loan interest rates as indications a tax hike is needed to block inflation.

Noting Congress has passed only 4 of 14 appropriations bills in the first nine months of the session, the President said the administration can't intelligently decide where to cut spending until it knows how much money Congress intends to provide.

U.S. Warplanes Press Attacks On Key Targets

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. pilots are taking advantage of good weather, to get in the heaviest blows they can at two key points where Communist war material enters North Vietnam—the port of Haiphong and railroad lines just below Red China, the U.S. Command said today.

Targets reported hit Thursday included a rail bridge 10 miles from China, a bridge leading out of Haiphong and a major fuel dump near the port. The raiders left a smoke column nearly two miles high at the dump, which had been on the Pentagon's restricted list and was hit for the first time.

It was the third straight day of strikes at rail links in the narrow valleys just south of China and the second of raids on bridges in Haiphong. Other targets included two more fuel dumps in the port area and the MIG airfield at Hoa Lac.

MIG 17s came up to challenge Navy planes striking Haiphong and at least one enemy plane was reported damaged in a brief dogfight. The U.S. Command said one F105 Thunderchief was lost and its pilot was missing.

Only scattered skirmishes were reported in the ground war in South Vietnam but Viet Cong guerrillas stepped up terrorism.

Manry Family Is On Mississippi Voyage

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP)—Robert Manry, newspaperman turned sailor and travel writer, has exchanged the North Atlantic for the Mississippi River in his latest voyage.

Manry, with his family, planned a stop in Natchez today on his 27-foot boat, "Curlew." He won headlines in 1965 for his solitary, 78-day crossing of the Atlantic in the 13½-foot sailboat "Tinkerbell."

He wrote a popular book about his adventure and gave it the same title as the little craft.

Now, the 49-year-old Manry, his wife Virginia and two teenage children are on a cruise that will take them down the Mississippi into the Caribbean, up the East Coast to the Hudson River, into the Great Lakes and home to Cleveland.

He estimated the 6,000 mile trip will take a year.

House Dem Traces Problem To Voter Unrest

Letters from Home Express Displeasure Over Major Issues

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's domestic program is in deep trouble in Congress—trouble that can be traced to several sources.

There is general agreement that a major cause of the problem is growing concern among voters over the war in Vietnam, the prospect of higher taxes, rioting in cities and the cost of living.

Members of Congress, particularly in the House, are getting more mail than normally. Frequent recesses and long week-ends have given them more time to go home and rub elbows with the people.

The message is coming through.

"The people are frustrated," a top House Democrat said. "They are unhappy and it's getting worse. They wonder why we don't do something about it and if we don't, they might do something about us in next year's elections."

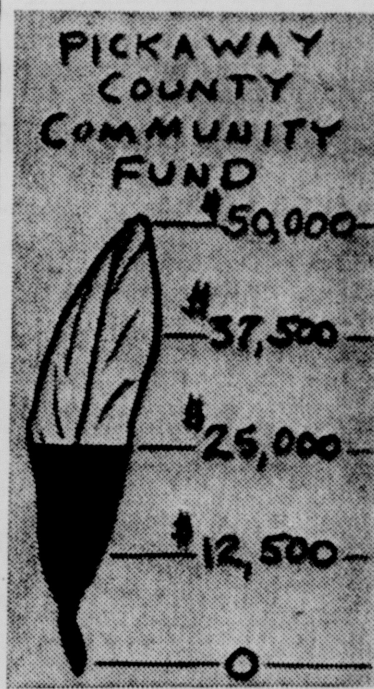

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma summed it up this way:

"We (the Democrats) just don't have the votes we had last year when the President's program fared very well. We lost 47 seats in last year's elections. Another factor is the growing concern of the people over the fiscal situation and the war in Vietnam. We just can't move as fast this year as we did last year."

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Republican Conference composed of all 186 GOP members, agreed with Albert's appraisal of how the voters are feeling.

"But the fact remains," Laird added, "that the Democrats still have a majority. It's not our fault that they don't vote together. I believe that lack of leadership on the part of the President is a major cause of the slowdown. The President should establish priorities, keeping in mind the war in Vietnam. Then we could vote on them and get out of here."

House Dem Traces Problem To Voter Unrest

Letters from Home Express Displeasure Over Major Issues

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's domestic program is in deep trouble in Congress—trouble that can be traced to several sources.

There is general agreement that a major cause of the problem is growing concern among voters over the war in Vietnam, the prospect of higher taxes, rioting in cities and the cost of living.

Members of Congress, particularly in the House, are getting more mail than normally. Frequent recesses and long weekends have given them more time to go home and rub elbows with the people.

The message is coming through.

"The people are frustrated," a top House Democrat said. "They are unhappy and it's getting worse. They wonder why we don't do something about it and if we don't, they might do something about us in next year's elections."

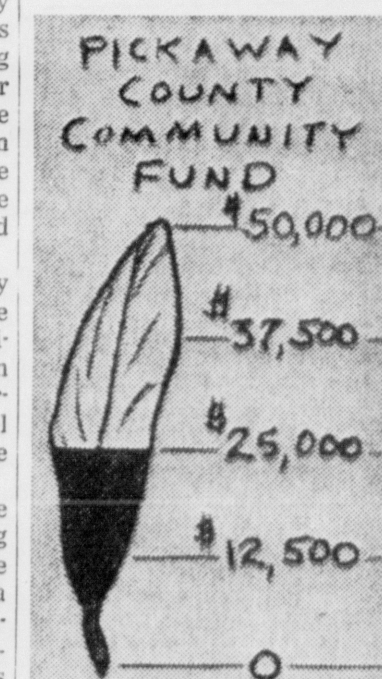

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma summed it up this way:

"We (the Democrats) just don't have the votes we had last year when the President's program fared very well. We lost 47 seats in last year's elections. Another factor is the growing concern of the people over the fiscal situation and the war in Vietnam. We just can't move as fast this year as we did last year."

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the House Republican Conference composed of all 186 GOP members, agreed with Albert's appraisal of how the voters are feeling.

"But the fact remains," Laird added, "that the Democrats still have a majority. It's not our fault that they don't vote together. I believe that lack of leadership on the part of the President is a major cause of the slow-down. The President should establish priorities, keeping in mind the war in Vietnam. Then we could vote on them and get out of here."

programs, saying: "All we in the Senate are trying to do is put some kind of limit on the power of the military-industrial complex to control the foreign policy of this nation."

Aiken said the recent flurry of war debate in the Senate is "just good politics."

"It's not only getting close to the election but close to campaign contribution time," he said. "States like California and Washington depend on the war industry—I think they prefer to call it defense procurement—for a good portion of their economy."

He noted that California Republican Sens. George Murphy and Thomas H. Kuchel, and Washington Democratic Sens. Henry M. Jackson and Warren G. Magnuson, are vocal supporters of the war.

But referring to war policy criticism from Republican Sens. Thurston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Aiken said: "Kentucky doesn't have much defense industry, does it?"

None of the senators Aiken discussed was immediately available for comment on his remarks.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., told a newsman he sees no likelihood Republicans—some of whom are from big defense industry states—will totally agree on a Vietnam policy for the 1968 presidential campaign.

Percy said it's too early to tell whether a lack of total agreement on Vietnam would pose problems for the Republicans in their efforts to win the presidency.

Percy's course has brought him into conflict with Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, his senior colleague from Illinois, the Senate GOP leader and the likely chairman of the 1968 Republican platform-writing committee. Dirksen is a staunch defender of President Johnson's war policies.

Percy, backed by 16 Republicans and six Democrats, introduced Thursday a resolution urging Johnson to greater efforts to obtain more war support from U.S. allies in Asia.

"I think it's full of mischief," Dirksen said.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., listed 39 countries he said were helping the U.S. effort in Vietnam.

But Percy stood firm on his position that other Asian countries, including South Vietnam, could help more.

Burglary Investigation Ends With Arrest of Two Suspects

Two men accused of entering the home of Dr. Robert J. Fillinger, Route 1, Lockbourne, and taking an estimated $2,500 worth of loot were apprehended today by Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff identified the two men as Billy Paul Harris, 22, McArthur, and Richard D. Adkins, 18, Columbus.

Still sought in connection with the burglary is Robert E. Lee Adkins, 25, Columbus.

The theft occurred Oct. 4, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. The sheriff reported there was no evidence of a forced entry. Included in the loot were three television sets, radios and rifles and shotguns.

Sheriff Radcliff said the entire haul had been sold for about $75 in Vinton County. He said that all the missing items will probably be recovered.

U.S. Warplanes

and assaults in the northern five provinces making up the 1st Corps area south of the demilitarized zone. The Communists appeared to be trying to weaken government control in the thinly held area.

Thirty-eight civilians died when two buses hit mines near Da Nang. A South Vietnamese district headquarters was heavily attacked and a U.S. Marine was killed and 14 wounded.

But the main action was in the skies over the North, where Hanoi claimed six American planes were downed Thursday and a total of 21 since Tuesday. The U.S. Command announced the loss of four planes.

With the scheduled shift in monsoon winds this month promising poor bombing weather over the North, it is evident that U.S. warplanes are trying to damage North Vietnam's supply routes so that they remain disrupted for some time. The list of Pentagon-approved targets has been gradually expanding and air commanders are being given permission for more frequent re-strikes in sensitive areas.

The stepped-up American pressure is meeting intensified barrages of Soviet-built ground-to-air missiles, heavy anti-aircraft fire and more frequent encounters with the elusive North Vietnamese air force, which minimizes its risks with hit-and-run harassment sweeps at American formations.

Thursday's four-minute dogfight above Haiphong began when six MIG 17s were spotted by a flight of slower Navy Skyhawks that had just dropped their bombs. One Skyhawk caught a MIG with its 20mm cannon during a harrowing head-on pass and the Navy pilot saw bits of metal flying from the enemy plane.

The Navy said the MIGs were attempting to break through to attack two propeller-driven A1 Skyraiders and a helicopter evidently on a pilot rescue mission in the Haiphong area—an indication that at least one Navy plane was downed during the day in addition to the Air Force F105 Thunderchief which was the 688th announced U.S. combat loss in North Vietnam.

Haiphong appeared the focus of Thursday's raids.

U.S. fliers are aiming to cut the city's communications with the rest of North Vietnam so that supplies will jam its limited storage area. The four bridges leading from the port have all been cut in at least one spot. Thursday's target was the most vital of the four, the main bridge leading to Hanoi, eight-tenths of a mile from Haiphong's center.

Pilots report at least two spans of the 300-foot, three-span structure have been dropped and, in addition, 3,000-pound bombs have blown out the roadbed in the bridge's center.

Civil Suit Dismissed

A civil suit for $109,734.36 filed March 13, 1963 in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court was dismissed today. The action was settled out of court.

John Puffinbarger of Williamsport filed the suit naming John H. Dunlap Jr. as the defendant. The suit arose over an automobile accident involving the two parties which occurred April 15, 1961.

The sheriff, who has been investigating the theft since it occurred Wednesday, reported his big break came today when the Sheriff of Vinton County Harold Steele, called him to report that a juvenile he had in his custody had implicated the adults in the burglary.

Dr. Fillinger's home is located in Pickaway County along Route 104. Charges will be filed against Harris and Richard Adkins today in Municipal Court.

Passenger Injured in Auto Mishap

Thomas Binkley, a passenger in an automobile operated by Donald H. Eldridge, 33, of 885 Atwater Ave., was admitted to Berger Hospital Thursday for treatment of a whiplash injury.

Eldridge was west bound on the Lancaster Pike at 7:30 p.m. yesterday. He stopped to make a left turn into a service station and was struck in the rear by an auto operated by Harry N. McCall, 72, Columbus.

In another accident Thursday afternoon, Ted Carsner, 9, chipped his teeth. He was in a car operated by Lucile Carsner, 55, 410 Abernathy Ave. Rickie W. Snider, 18, was the driver of the other car involved in the accident which occurred at the intersection of Mound and Mingo Sts.

Ambulance Care Course Attended By Dan Davis

Dan Davis, associate of the Mader Funeral Home, attended the First Advanced Practical Course on the Initial Emergency Care and Transportation of the Sick and Injured, held recently in Boston, Mass.

The four-day course was presented by the Committee on Injuries of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, and is considered by many the most comprehensive and advanced training of its type.

The course was attended by 260 persons consisting of police and fire department emergency squad personnel, Red Cross First Aid instructors, and ambulance operators. It emphasized the importance of well-trained and selected ambulance personnel in saving lives and preventing further patient injury during movement and transportation to the hospital.

Cincy Judge Under Criticism In Race Incident

CINCINNATI (AP)—The local chairman of the Congress on Racial Equality charged Municipal Judge William S. Mathews Thursday with administering "black and white justice," officials said.

In urging Negroes to vote him out of office, Curtis Freeman, called Judge Mathews a "racist" and said "no black man should vote for him in any election."

Freeman made the comments after John Poole, a Negro from Cincinnati, was convicted by Mathews for disorderly conduct in an incident Aug. 21 in which a patrolman stepped on his foot.

The civil rights leader addressed a gathering of 70 persons in the predominately Negro Avondale section of Cincinnati.

The patrolman, John Roedel, in plain clothes at the time of the occurrence at Cincinnati City Hall, said he stepped on Poole's foot and Poole began calling the police department names.

Poole, 24, denied the name-calling accusation and claimed Roedel tried to provoke him.

Stock Prices Inch Upward

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market mounted a broad but moderate advance in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

The margin of advances over declines among individual stocks expanded to about 3 to 2.

Gains of key issues were mainly limited to fractions with a few reaching a point or so.

Motors, aircrafts, nonferrous metals, airlines and drugs were mostly higher.

Brokers predicted that the next few sessions are likely to be a period of base building leading to push toward new high ground later in the fall.

They said that the threat of inflation continues to be the main stimulant for stock buying.

Many of the blue chips showed little movement and the narrower averages, in which they are dominant, were sluggish.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 1.33 at 928.46.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon had gained .3 to 337.1 with industrials up .3, rails up .4 and utilities up .1. Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange.

House Dem

A leading Senate Democrat who preferred anonymity put it this way:

"The session has dragged out longer than we had planned because of several factors that hadn't been counted on. Several months were used up on the congressional reorganization bill. The Dodd case took up a lot of time. Almost two months were used up debating the campaign financing bill. And then there has been the most daily long discussions of Vietnam policy."

The Senate-passed congressional reorganization bill is one of the major measures in trouble in the House. There have been committee hearings but no definite action is sighted. The bill isn't too popular with the leadership.

Another Senate-passed measure, a $4.6 billion two-year extension of the antipoverty program, is almost hopelessly bogged down in the House Education and Labor Committee. It may be weeks or months before the House gets a crack at it. And it almost certainly will be trimmed.

A House-passed civil rights bill designed to protect individuals in the exercise of their rights languishing in the Senate Judiciary Committee, whose chairman, James O. Eastland, D-Miss., is far from enthusiastic about it.

There is no prospect for early Senate action on a House-passed bill to broaden and liberalize the Social Security program.

The biggest question mark hangs over the President's request for more taxes to help keep the deficit down. The House Ways and Means Committee started, then postponed, consideration. Its members want some evidence of a big cut in federal spending before they try to justify a tax hike. If there's no cut, there will be no tax bill.

The committee may take into its own hands the job of cutting spending if the President doesn't move first. Republicans want to add to the next appropriation bill in the House a directive to the President to cut spending at least $5 billion.

The President's foreign-aid authorization is tied up in a Senate-House compromise committee. Money to finance it can't be appropriated until the authorization measure becomes law.

The foreign-aid money bill is one of three appropriation measures that haven't even started through Congress. Only four of the 12 that have passed the House have gone to the President. The others are in various stages of progress.

A $13.3 billion measure financing the Labor Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was recommended Wednesday by the House because it contained 13 hikes over the budget figures. The same fate faces several other bills.

Clearing money bills for the government year that started last July 1 may keep Congress in session until mid-December or longer. And some other administration measures originally scheduled for consideration this year may be left behind when adjournment does finally come.

The growing feeling of frustration among the legislators is producing two schools of thought among the members.

"Why rush when we will be here all year?" some ask.

"Let's call it quits now and finish up next year," others suggest.

British Laborites Urge End To Racial Discrimination

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP)—British Laborites called on the government today to outlaw racial discrimination, which they said is spreading throughout the country.

Debate during the windup session of the ruling party's annual convention ended with unanimous passage of a resolution expressing concern at the extent of discrimination in employment, housing, insurance and other services. It also urged new laws to promote "equal opportunity without regard to race, color or ethnic or national origins."

Party leaders, after noting that certain new antidiscrimination laws are being prepared for parliamentary action, accepted the resolution.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson left the convention unchallenged master of his party with more time to advance toward the frontiers of the great society he has promised to establish in Britain.

Some of the 6,000 delegates at the five-day meeting had come to rebuke Wilson for his austerity measures aimed at curing Britain's ailing economy. They left with Wilson's warning that, although some hard times may still lie ahead, they have no choice but to sustain his government in office.

Wilson won not only endorsement of his deflationary policy at home but also his bid to join the European Common Market, which had also been attacked by Labor critics.

Government officials were reported convinced that only a direct veto by French President Charles de Gaulle would keep Britain from joining the European economic group.

Officials said Wilson believes de Gaulle remains opposed to British membership in the six-nation community but that Wilson also feels de Gaulle would be hesitant to bar British entry for a second time. De Gaulle vetoed British membership four years ago.

Lord Chalfont, the British minister charged with negotiating entry in the Common Market, set up shop in Brussels Thursday even before the six governments have decided whether they are willing to talk with Britain. Informants said his instructions are to meet every French objection head on.

The most serious rebuff Wilson sustained at the convention appeared to be the vote urging the government to stop backing American policies on Vietnam.

and to work toward an end to American bombing of North Vietnam.

But Wilson has often managed to make a virtue out of necessity. It's possible he will use the convention's vote in his exchanges with President Johnson's administration, mainly to show the sort of pressure he is under.

Court Refuses To Order Viet Issue on Ballot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court in a special decision issued Friday turned down a mandamus action brought by a Cleveland group seeking to place an anti-Vietnam war resolution on the November ballot in that city.

The high court's action paralleled a decision given Wednesday in a similar case. A mandamus action also had been filed with the court asking a similar resolution be placed on ballots in Lake County.

The Cleveland action had been brought by Franklin Anderson of Cleveland on behalf of a group seeking the vote. They had first petitioned City Council but petitions were turned down by the City Council clerk.

As in the Lake County case, the court held the state constitution restricts municipal initiative powers to "all questions which such municipalities may now and hereafter be authorized to control by legislative action." And as in the previous case, the court ruled that the city is limited to what is authorized by law in legislative action.

Zoo, Rancher Swap Reindeer, Llamas

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A swap of two Lapiander reindeer for two llamas has left a Montana rancher and City Park Zoo officials happy.

David Branser, who runs the Top Hat Ranch near Roscoe, trucked the reindeer, selected from his herd of about 20, to Denver.

Then he loaded two zoo-born llamas for the long trip home. Branser said he always has wanted some of the South American creatures for his 3,800-acre spread.

Burglary Investigation Ends With Arrest of Two Suspects

Two men accused of entering the home of Dr. Robert J. Fillinger, Route 1, Lockbourne, and taking an estimated $2,500 worth of loot were apprehended today by Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff identified the two men as Billy Paul Harris, 22, McArthur, and Richard D. Adkins, 18, Columbus.

Still sought in connection with the burglary is Robert E. Lee Adkins, 25, Columbus.

The theft occurred Oct. 4, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. The sheriff reported there was no evidence of a forced entry. Included in the loot were three television sets, radios and rifles and shotguns.

Sheriff Radcliff said the entire haul had been sold for about $75 in Vinton County. He said that all the missing items will probably be recovered.

U.S. Warplanes

and assaults in the northern five provinces making up the 1st Corps area south of the demilitarized zone. The Communists appeared to be trying to weaken government control in the thinly held area.

Thirty-eight civilians died when two buses hit mines near Da Nang, a South Vietnamese district headquarters was heavily attacked and a U.S. Marine was killed and 14 wounded.

But the main action was in the skies over the North, where Hanoi claimed six American planes were downed Thursday and a total of 21 since Tuesday. The U.S. Command announced the loss of four planes.

With the scheduled shift in monsoon winds this month promising poor bombing weather over the North, it is evident that U.S. warplanes are trying to damage North Vietnam's supply routes so that they remain disrupted for some time. The list of Pentagon-approved targets has been gradually expanding and air commanders are being given permission for more frequent re-strikes in sensitive areas.

The stepped-up American pressure is meeting intensified barrages of Soviet-built ground-to-air missiles, heavy anti-aircraft fire and more frequent encounters with the elusive North Vietnamese air force, which minimizes its risks with hit-and-run harassment sweeps at American formations.

Thursday's four-minute dogfight above Haiphong began when six MIG 17s were spotted by a flight of slower Navy Skyhawks that had just dropped their bombs. One Skyhawk caught a MIG with its 20mm cannon during a harrowing head-on pass and the Navy pilot saw bits of metal flying from the enemy plane.

The Navy said the MIGs were attempting to break through to attack two propeller-driven A1 Skyraiders and a helicopter evidently on a pilot rescue mission in the Haiphong area—an indication that at least one Navy plane was downed during the fight in addition to the Air Force F105 Thunderchief which was the 68th announced U.S. combat loss in North Vietnam.

Haiphong appeared the focus of Thursday's raids.

U.S. fliers are aiming to cut the city's communications with the rest of North Vietnam so that supplies will jam its limited storage area. The four bridges leading from the port have all been cut in at least one spot. Thursday's target was the most vital of the four, the main bridge leading to Hanoi, eight-tenths of a mile from Haiphong's center.

Pilots report at least two spans of the 300-foot, three-span structure have been dropped and, in addition, 3,000-pound bombs have blown out the roadbed in the bridge's center.

Civil Suit Dismissed
A civil suit for $109,734.36 filed March 13, 1963 in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court was dismissed today. The action was settled out of court.

John Puffinbarger of Williamsport filed the suit naming John H. Dunlap Jr. as the defendant. The suit arose over an automobile accident involving the two parties which occurred April 15, 1961.

The sheriff, who has been investigating the theft since it occurred Wednesday, reported his big break came today when the Sheriff of Vinton County Harold Steele, called him to report that a juvenile he had in his custody had implicated the adults in the burglary.

Dr. Fillinger's home is located in Pickaway County along Route 104. Charges will be filed against Harris and Richard Adkins today in Municipal Court.

Thomas Binkley, a passenger in an automobile operated by Donald H. Eldridge, 33, of 885 Atwater Ave., was admitted to Berger Hospital Thursday for treatment of a whiplash injury.

Eldridge was west bound on the Lancaster Pike at 7:30 p.m. yesterday. He stopped to make a left turn into a service station and was struck in the rear by an auto operated by Harry N. McCall, 72, Columbus.

In another accident Thursday afternoon, Ted Carsner, 9, chipped his teeth. He was in a car operated by Lucile Carsner, 55, 410 Abernathy Ave. Rickie W. Snider, 18, was the driver of the other car involved in the accident which occurred at the intersection of Mound and Mingo Sts.

Ambulance Care Course Attended By Dan Davis
Dan Davis, associate of the Mader Funeral Home, attended the First Advanced Practical Course on the Initial Emergency Care and Transportation of the Sick and Injured, held recently in Boston, Mass.

The four-day course was presented by the Committee on Injuries of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, and is considered by many the most comprehensive and advanced training of its type.

The course was attended by 260 persons consisting of police and fire department emergency squad personnel, Red Cross First Aid instructors, and ambulance operators. It emphasized the importance of well-trained and selected ambulance personnel in saving lives and preventing further patient injury during movement and transportation to the hospital.

Cincy Judge Under Criticism In Race Incident
CINCINNATI (AP)—The local chairman of the Congress on Racial Equality charged Municipal Judge William S. Mathews Thursday with administering "black and white justice", officials said.

In urging Negroes to vote him out of office, Curtis Freeman, called Judge Mathews a "racist" and said "no black man should vote for him in any election."

Freeman made the comments after John Poole, a Negro from Cincinnati, was convicted by Mathews for disorderly conduct in an incident Aug. 21 in which a patrolman stepped on his foot.

The civil rights leader addressed a gathering of 70 persons in the predominately Negro Avondale section of Cincinnati.

The patrolman, John Rockel, in plain clothes at the time of the occurrence at Cincinnati City Hall, said he stepped on Poole's foot and Poole began calling the police department names.

Poole, 24, denied the name-calling accusation and claimed Rockel tried to provoke him.

Stock Prices

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market mounted a broad but moderate advance in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

The margin of advances over declines among individual stocks expanded to about 3 to 2.

Gains of key issues were mainly limited to fractions with a few reaching a point or so.

Motors, aircrafts, nonferrous metals, airlines and drugs were mostly higher.

Brokers predicted that the next few sessions are likely to be a period of base building leading to push toward new high ground later in the fall.

They said that the threat of inflation continues to be the main stimulant for stock buying.

Many of the blue chips showed little movement and the narrower averages, in which they are dominant, were sluggish.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up 1.33 at 928.46.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon had gained .3 to 337.1 with industrials up .3, rails up .4 and utilities up .1. Prices advanced on the American Stock Exchange.

A leading Senate Democrat who preferred anonymity put it this way:

"The session has dragged out longer than we had planned because of several factors that hadn't been counted on. Several months were used up on the congressional reorganization bill. The Dodd case took up a lot of time. Almost two months were used up debating the campaign financing bill. And then there has been the almost daily long discussions of Vietnam policy."

The Senate-passed congressional reorganization bill is one of the major measures in trouble in the House. There have been committee hearings but no definite action is sighted. The bill isn't too popular with the leadership.

Another Senate-passed measure, a $4.6 billion two-year extension of the anti-poverty program, is almost hopelessly bogged down in the House Education and Labor Committee. It may be weeks or months before the House gets a crack at it. And it almost certainly will be trimmed.

A House-passed civil rights bill designed to protect individuals in the exercise of their rights languishing in the Senate Judiciary Committee, whose chairman, James O. Eastland, D-Miss., is far from enthusiastic about it.

There is no prospect for early Senate action on a House-passed bill to broaden and liberalize the Social Security program.

The biggest question mark hangs over the President's request for more taxes to help keep the deficit down. The House Ways and Means Committee started, then postponed, consideration. Its members want some evidence of a big cut in federal spending before they try to justify a tax hike. If there's no cut, there will be no tax bill.

The committee may take into its own hands the job of cutting spending if the President doesn't move first. Republicans want to add to the next appropriation bill in the House a directive to the President to cut spending at least $5 billion.

The President's foreign-aid authorization is tied up in a Senate-House compromise committee. Money to finance it can't be appropriated until the authorization measure becomes law.

The foreign-aid money bill is one of three appropriation measures that haven't even started through Congress. Only four of the 12 that have passed the House have gone to the President. The others are in various stages of progress.

A $13.3 billion measure financing the Labor Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was re-committed Wednesday by the House because it contained 13 hikes over the budget figures. The same fate faces several other bills.

Clearing money bills for the government year that started last July 1 may keep Congress in session until mid-December or longer. And some other administration measures originally scheduled for consideration this year may be left behind when adjournment does finally come.

The growing feeling of frustration among the legislators is producing two schools of thought among the members.

"Why rush when we will be here all year?" some ask.

"Let's call it quits now and finish up next year," others suggest.

Jones To Show Holstein Cattle
Reuben Jones and sons, Route 4, will be exhibiting four head of Holstein dairy cattle at the North American Dairy Cattle Show in Columbus Oct. 4-19.

Over 2,000 head of dairy cattle are expected to be shown in the competition for $50,000 in prizes at what many people believe to be the biggest cow show on the North American Continent.

Patrolman Slated For Drug School
Wesley Barton, a patrolman with the Circleville Police Department, will attend the Federal Narcotics School Oct. 16-21 in Washington, D. C.

The school is presented by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and is designed to curb drug abuse.

Crooked Jaw Causes Host of Disorders

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Head aches? Ears ring? Have dizzy spells and a creaking neck? Might be nothing more than a bad bite. Which is to say you might have a crooked jaw. Dr. Harold Gelb, a New York dentist says seven million Americans have that problem. Speaking at a meeting of the Georgia Dental Association, Gelb said people who bite badly for a long time can get their muscles in such shape they can't be realigned. However, he said, most of the problems caused by crooked jaws and teeth can be corrected.

Ultra - Conservative Sect Chooses Oregon As Home

WOODBURN, Ore. (AP) — One of the most unusual pilgrimages in modern history seems to have ended in this small agricultural community which is now home for more than 800 Russian nomads known as "Old Believers."

More than 40 years ago an obscure Russian religious sect called Starovery, or Old Believers, fled the Bolshevik Revolution for China, in hopes of being able to farm in peace and isolation.

Thirty years later another Communist revolution sent them from China halfway around the world to Brazil. But for some the move to Brazil was unsuccessful. So in the early 1960s they began migrating to the United States and to Woodburn.

Sullivan, "and these kids—especially the younger ones—are caught in the middle."

A visit to some of the Russian families supported his point. The older boys and girls—the ones who grew up when the colony was in Brazil—still seem to be solidly under the influence of their parents.

"Naah, not really," he says, brushing his Dennis the Menace bangs away from his forehead. "Do you think you might want to leave home some day and start your own family somewhere else?"

"Where's there to go?" Paul responds.

Crooked Jaw Causes Host of Disorders

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Head ache? Ears ring? Have dizzy spells and a creaking neck? Might be nothing more than a bad bite. Which is to say you might have a crooked jaw. Dr. Harold Gelb, a New York dentist says seven million Americans have that problem. Speaking at a meeting of the Georgia Dental Association, Gelb said people who bite badly for a long time can get their muscles in such shape they can't be realigned. However, he said, most of the problems caused by crooked jaws and teeth can be corrected.

Ultra - Conservative Sect Chooses Oregon As Home

WOODBURN, Ore. (AP) — One of the most unusual pilgrimages in modern history seems to have ended in this small agricultural community which is now home for more than 800 Russian nomads known as "Old Believers."

More than 40 years ago an obscure Russian religious sect called Starover, or Old Believers, fled the Bolshevik Revolution for China, in hopes of being able to farm in peace and isolation.

Thirty years later another Communist revolution sent them from China halfway around the world to Brazil.

But for some the move to Brazil was unsuccessful. So in the early 1960s they began migrating to the United States and to Woodburn.

Old Believers adhere to the old ways. The men wear tunics and sashes. They do not shave. The women wear peasant dresses and they braid their hair.

Old Believers do not smoke. They do not approve of movies or television. Men do not dance with women. Food cannot be eaten from a dish belonging to someone else.

They are the most conservative of all Russian Orthodox sects—with religious traditions rooted several hundred years.

Why did they come to Woodburn, a town about 30 miles South of Portland?

The Old Believers like the farm life out here," explains Bernie Sullivan, a representative of the Tlstoy Foundation, a New York-based relief organization which helps bring displaced persons to America. Sullivan explained that when the Old Believers first scouted Woodburn they found several already living there. This helped ease the language problem.

The Russians seem happy. Their farms are prospering, they're building new homes and they're having children.

But something is bothering the elders of the Old Believer community.

How can Old Believer parents rear their youngsters in the atmosphere of a centuries-old religion when the children are exposed to a world of rock 'n' roll, hot rods, drinking and other accoutrements of teen-age America?

"It's really a problem," says

Sullivan, "and these kids—especially the younger ones—are caught in the middle."

A visit to some of the Russian families supported his point. The older boys and girls—the ones who grew up when the colony was in Brazil—still seem to be solidly under the influence of their parents.

Getting the Message

Just when many had given up hope about where Vogue and top-pop clothes designers like Mary Quant were taking their best girl, along comes a startling piece of information:

A London poll reveals that women there would most like to look like model Jean Shrimpton and Mrs. Jacqueline

Kennedy, in that order. And even better news, Twiggy that angular prototype of the kind of beauty you can see through, stands a poor ninth, behind the likes of Elizabeth Taylor and Hayley Mills.

It may be that the girls that girl-watchers watch are getting the message after all.

Africans Resent Position

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
ARUSHA, Tanzania — East Africans, one gathers after a few conversations, resent being regarded as pawns in the Cold War. They say they are perfectly capable of taking help from anybody without losing their freedom to act for themselves. And, simply because both Moscow and Peking are far away, the East Africans could be right about this. But there is a more sophisticated question to be asked: Is help from Soviet Russia or from Red China likely to be as efficient as aid or trade that comes from the West? Speaking of comparative ideologies, is the sort of rigid socialism that one identifies with Moscow or the "eastern bloc" likely to build up a new nation as speedily as identification with the pragmatism of America, Europe, and non-Communist Asia?

The answers to such questions need not be made dogmatically. For we are about to get a contest between two types of help. In Tanzania and Zambia, the Red Chinese have agreed to build a thousand-mile railroad linking the Tanzanian port of Dar-es-Salaam on the Indian Ocean with the Zambian interior. The cost will come to some three hundred million dollars for rails, roadbed, rolling stock and new docking facilities at tidewater in Dar-es-Salaam. The Red Chinese loan will be interest-free. Whether the East African scene will be flooded with Red Chinese laborers as well as with qualified technicians could depend on the rate of construction. Since no Red Chinese would be allowed to leave Peking without carrying with him the "thoughts of Mao" it is obvious that a walking propaganda kit will go along with each technician.

Tanzania and Zambia have been preening themselves on their Chinese deal. But, considering the chaos on the Chinese mainland, it is no sure thing that the Peking government will last long enough to build a new "iron snake" in Africa. Meanwhile Malawi, a landlocked country crammed between Portuguese Mozambique and Zambia, is about to talk things over with a Japanese consortium which has offered to build a railroad linking the Malawi interior with lines that now run to the Indian Ocean. The deal will probably be signed this month, with work starting before the first of next year. The Japanese firm of Nippon Kosei will oversee the work.

So we are apparently about to get a race between the Japanese and the Red Chinese to see who can build the best African railroad in the quickest time. Judging by my own memorable experience in riding from Tokyo to Kyoto last year on the Japanese "wonder train" that travels at 125 miles an hour without jarring a typewriter, I'll bet on the Japanese doing the more satisfactory job.

If Malawi does better for itself by dealing with pragmatic Japan than Tanzania and Zambia do in turning to Peking, it won't be the first time that an African nation has benefited by steering clear of Communist help. Some four years ago Tom Mboya, Kenya's minister in charge of economic development, thought President Houphouët-Boigny of the Ivory Coast might be making a mistake to rely on close economic ties with the French. But the Ivory Coast has become one of the richer African nations by permitting private capital to operate, while nearby Guinea and Ghana have impoverished themselves by going to socialist extremes. And Kenya, which has actually more or less followed the Ivory Coast pattern under Mboya's planning eye, has done better for itself than Tanzania under President Julius Nyerere's socialist prodding.

Having spent three days at some delightful lodges in or near the Tanzania wild animal reserves, I don't wish to appear ungrateful by mentioning Nyerere's infatuation with "eastern socialism." But the lodges in Serengeti National Park, at Ngorongoro crater and at Lake Manyara Park, which control the traffic of "camera safari" addicts looking to catch a cheetah or a lion in the act of killing, have been turning away hundreds in the tourist seasons. I was told that privately operated lodges can't enlarge their facilities because "Nyerere can't make up his mind as between capitalist and socialist lodge keepers." Kenya, which has a more laissez faire attitude, does better in the way of accommodating tourist volume.

So, without being heated up about it, one can await the issue of the contest between Communist and pragmatic ideas in Africa. It is a good bet that the Communists won't be able to deliver.

When the chips were down, the mother and father, the father were able to call on that inner reserve. They came face to face with the reality of the immediate problem and helped to solve it.

I might say that their determination, their wisdom, and their psychological insight gave a tremendous amount of support to their child during every phase of the disease.

The fact that the child recovered completely was a testimonial to modern medicine and to the constant additional nursing care of the parents.

Many of us possess that inner reserve which needs only to be used to be replenished. Unless it is used, that inner reserve sometimes dies of stagnation.

Fear can often become so de-vitalizing that it can actually paralyze someone into inactivity. Fear then becomes a disease in itself.

When people come face to face with a problem, they can more easily solve it. Almost always they find that a single problem stands out. When it is solved, all the tiny ones, that seemed too distressing, melt away. It takes courage to stand up to fear. It is most rewarding when we do so.

Don't drive too close to the automobile in front of you. His exhaust, carbon monoxide, may make you drowsy.

Advertising man David Ogilvie likes the story of the man who asked the clerk at a Madison Avenue gourmet shop, "How much is your best caviar this week?" "Forty-two dollars a pound," was the reply. "Forty-two dollars!" gasped the would-be purchaser. "Why, that shop near the Plaza is selling the best caviar for thirty dollars a pound." "So why don't you buy it there?" asked the clerk. "They're all out of it," admitted the man. "Hah," scoffed the clerk. "When we're out of it, we sell it for FIVE DOLLARS a pound!"

Star System Returns

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new economics of the film business has brought a breed of superstars who can virtually dictate terms under which they will make movies.

Who are these fortunate few? They number a round dozen: Julie Andrews, Gregory Peck, Richard Burton, Audrey Hepburn, Jack Lemmon, Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, Sidney Poitier, Frank Sinatra, Barbara Streisand, Elizabeth Taylor and John Wayne.

These are stars who can and do earn between $750,000 and a million dollars per film, either in salaries or participation in the profits.

Comments: Burton's draw as a single performer has not been completely tested; his most magnificent deals have been made as part of a team with his wife, Miss Taylor. The position of Miss Streisand on the list is almost an absurdity, since she has not yet appeared on theater screens; but she has made three film deals averaging a million dollars apiece, and that's measure enough.

Poitier is a recent addition to the list his last three films having been smash hits. Lemmon, Peck and Sinatra remain, although their last few films have produced indifferent results. Their positions are threatened by Lee Marvin, who is coming up fast on the basis of his Academy Award and recent successes.

To this golden dozen should be added four stars who occupy special categories: Sean Connery, Cary Grant, Jerry Lewis, and Elvis Presley.

Comment: Connery is the screen's most consistent money-earner as James Bond, but his box-office value in other roles has not been proven. Grant still commands huge money, but makes only one picture every two or three years, usually for his own company. Lewis can earn upwards of a million as star-producer-director, etc., but his films are specialized. The same is true of Presley, who continues to draw a million dollars for three films a year.

In the next category are numerous stars, some of whom verge upon superstar classification. They include: Warren

Beatty, Marlon Brando, Yul Brynner, James Coburn, Tony Curtis, Doris Day, Sandy Dennis, Kirk Douglas, Clint Eastwood, Henry Fonda, Glenn Ford, James Garner, Rex Harrison, Charlton Heston, William Holden, Bob Hope, Rock Hudson, Deborah Kerr, Burt Lancaster, Shirley MacLaine, Dean Martin, Lee Marvin, Walter Matthau, Robert Mitchum, David Niven, Kim Novak, George Peppard, Anthony Quinn, Debbie Reynolds, Rosalind Russell, James Stewart, Dick Van Dyke, Richard Widmark and Natalie Wood.

Comment: Some of these can attract top money but are limited in their characterizations to special kinds of roles—Harrison, Matthau.

To this list can be added players in three categories: 1. Those who can function as stars in certain films, such as Carroll Baker, Stephen Boyd, Jane Fonda, Lee Remick, Rod Taylor, Rod Taylor; 2. Those who appear frequently, but always as stars—Fred Astaire, Lucille Ball, Fred MacMurray, Joanne Woodward; 3. The constantly growing list of potential stars—Alan Arkin, Candice Bergen, Robert Redford, Tommy Steele, Raquel Welch.

Of supreme importance in today's film market is another category: the international stars. Some of them occasionally appear in Hollywood pictures. Mostly, because of esthetic or tax reasons, they prefer to work in Europe. But most of their films are financed by American companies.

The international stars: Brigitte Bardot, Michael Caine, Claudia Cardinale, Julie Christie, Albert Finney, Vittorio Gassman, Richard Harris, David Hemmings, Gina Lollobrigida, Sophia Loren, Marcello Mastroianni, Hayley Mills, Jeanne Moreau, Peter O'Toole, Lynn Redgrave, Vanessa Redgrave, Peter Sellers, Omar Sharif, Terence Stamp.

All of these lists are subject to change at any time, as established stars lose their vogue and new players burst forth to take their places. That is the nature of the star system and the reason it is likely to prevail, in one form or another, as long as there are movies.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential campaign, reaching a climax exactly one year from now, will be a mess for both parties if nothing changes in the war in Vietnam or in the public attitude toward it at home.

President Johnson, with his Democrats split on the war and public support for it dwindling, may not only have a tough time getting reelected but even renominated.

Republicans are split on the same subject. Just this week Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Republican Senate leader who has steadfastly backed Johnson's Vietnam policy, rebuked is Republicans he thought were too harsh on Johnson.

Those Republicans being mentioned as their party's likely presidential candidate are divided, too.

Last March, Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., widened their differences when the latter called for a bombing halt in Vietnam and Johnson said continuing the air strikes was imperative. Kennedy hasn't said much about it since.

While he denies presidential ambitions in 1968 and has publicly pledged support for Johnson, Kennedy has been standing in the polls started

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, denying any intention of being a candidate, had the support of Romney but his ratings in the polls steadily went

This week the Gallup Poll showed 51 per cent of those quizzed favored Kennedy to 39 per cent for Johnson. Meanwhile, Johnson has been persistently belabored about war by Democrats in Congress.

If there is no change in the war by October, 1968, Democrats will have a tormented time reconciling their differences. There will have to be some extraordinary flip-flops if the party hopes to look united.

But Republicans can read the polls. Some of them already have done some flip-flopping, an exercise which could be very convenient if public opinion on the war gets worse.

The No. 1 example is Michigan's Gov. George Romney who for most of 1965 solidly backed Johnson on the war after a trip to Vietnam earlier that year. He began to get more restrained and vague before the year's end.

Then he was on again-off-again. Earlier this year he was saying the 1968 presidential candidate with the best chance for election will be the one who convinces voters he can achieve peace "at a reasonably early date."

But when he reached the point of saying he had been "brainwashed" by government officials on his trip to Vietnam his standing in the polls started

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, denying any intention of being a candidate, had the support of Romney but his ratings in the polls steadily went up and this week the Gallup Poll had a new finding.

This was it: of those questioned, 55 to 41 per cent favored a Republican ticket led by Rockefeller and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan to a Democratic ticket with Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Maybe it was only a coincidence, but almost at the very moment this poll was disclosed Rockefeller, who had broadly supported Johnson's Vietnam policy, was reported saying privately he was shifting toward a more moderate position and was no longer wholeheartedly behind Johnson.

Asked about this later, he declined comment by saying he had said nothing about it and wouldn't.

Reagan, a tough-liner on Vietnam, may be becoming a little more restrained, judging from recent statements of his, but not much. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whom the GOP's political pros like, has taken and stood by a hard line. In a recent interview he warned his fellow-contenders for the Republican nomination not to run on a platform of "peace at any price."

And this week, Dirksen, without naming names, cautioned some of his fellow Republican Senators who have been most caustic about Johnson not to demean him for it means demeaning the "prestige of the republic." Dirksen has been steadfast in support of Johnson on the war.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Goals are a necessary part of life.

If you have no goals, you rust to death.

If you have too few goals, or goals too easily gained, you wind up bored and cranky.

Of course, it is also possible to have too many goals, so many that they leave you confused and frustrated, undecided which to pursue and which to abandon.

Therefore it's a good idea to have two kinds of goals: real goals and daydream goals.

Real goals are the ones you sweat to make true. Daydream goals are more fun. They are the fantasies that tease the mind, things you've never done and probably never will.

Looking over my own list of unwon daydream goals, I find that I have yet to—

Hypnotize a charging rhinoceros with a single glance.

Eat a bird of paradise under glass.

Get the girl who brings coffee around our office to let me open a charge account.

Wallow in a European spa.

Beat my wife three times in a row at gin rummy.

Make a hole in one at golf.

Sip bean soup in the U.S. Senate's lunchroom, or champagne from the slipper of Julie Andrews.

Rent a real live gorilla as a subway bodyguard.

Track mud on a rainy day into the main drawing room of Buckingham Palace.

Finish a book written by Proust, Thomas Mann, James Joyce or Kathleen Windsor.

Build a more stately mansion for my soul, as the swift seasons roll.

Get anything back for a box top that was worth the quarter I also enclosed.

Receive a written apology from an Internal Revenue agent for the honest mistakes I made while following the advice of my barber on how to fill out my 1948 income tax.

Attend a testimonial dinner to a gall bladder surgeon given by his grateful patients.

Receive a standing, 10-minute ovation for any speech I've made to our local PTA.

Permanently fix any leaky faucet.

Lose an ounce while on a "quick, easy diet, guaranteed to melt pounds away as if by magic."

Go on a whale hunt and be the first to call, "Avast, mates, there she blows."

Make a martini dry enough to satisfy all the hydrophobes who come to any cocktail party I throw.

Cook a wolf or pickle a herring. Dissolve an expensive pearl in wine and offer it to a lovely lady with the remark, "Baby, when you go with me, you go first class."

Play a solo on the bongo drums at Carnegie Hall.

Land a job as a traveling salesman demonstrating skin decal at nudist conventions.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The administration's tax increase proposal, which pre-season reports indicated would display a hard-driving offense, apparently has run headlong into a line of stiffening taxpayer defense.

Mail to congressmen reportedly is running heavily in favor of holding down taxes, and so, by a 20-5 vote, the House Ways and Means Committee has voted to lay aside the measure.

Spending cuts come first, it said.

The offensive coach in the White House now may have to devise some new plays if the game is to be won. Early indications, however, are that none are forthcoming.

Speaking here this week,

Charles Zwick, assistant director of the Budget Bureau, indicated the administration would resist cuts that threatened to undermine its domestic programs.

The results of this impasse, if it persists, could be very dangerous to the economy, for the signals of rapid expansion seem to be flashing from many directions.

There is no such thing as a stalemate possible in this game. Somehow, revenue must be raised or spending cut. A decision must be made or, it is generally agreed, inflation threatens.

Inflation for a short while can seem like a good thing. Most people might be taking home bigger pay checks and the disillusionment sets in only with the realization that prices are higher, too.

This stiffening taxpayer defense against spending is not an isolated reaction. In recent years municipal bond issues and school budgets have been turned down by voters.

Clearly, voters are concerned about what they feel is an absence of old-fashioned American thrift on every level of government from their own local affairs to Washington.

They have watched their Social Security taxes rise. They have watched their state legislatures this year add close to $2.5 billion in taxes, according to the Tax Foundation, a nonprofit research organization.

New sales taxes make every shopping trip a reminder that life is expensive. Nine states this year raised gasoline taxes, 10 states raised tobacco taxes, four raised alcohol taxes and seven states added realty transfer taxes.

Although one of the big offensive plays by tax advocates was that a 10 per cent surtax on incomes would merely bring taxes up to about where they were in 1964, the defense already has routed that strategy.

Pierre Rinfret, a private economist, commented recently that if we were paying taxes today at merely the 1964 rate, "our actual taxes paid would be approximately $10 billion less than they now are."

Several surveys have shown that during the past two years American consumers have become agitated about the state of the economy and have, perhaps defensively, cut their spending and added to savings.

Getting the Message

Just when many had given up hope about where Vogue and top-pop clothes designers like Mary Quant were taking their best girl, along comes a startling piece of information:

A London poll reveals that women there would most like to look like model Jean Shrimpton and Mrs. Jacqueline

Kennedy, in that order. And even better news, Twiggy that angular prototype of the kind of beauty you can see through, stands a poor ninth, behind the likes of Elizabeth Taylor and Hayley Mills.

It may be that the girls that girl-watchers watch are getting the message after all.

Africans Resent Position

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

ARUSHA, Tanzania — East Africans, one gathers after a few conversations, resent being regarded as pawns in the Cold War. They say they are perfectly capable of taking help from anybody without losing their freedom to act for themselves. And, simply because both Moscow and Peking are far away, the East Africans could be right about this. But there is a more sophisticated question to be asked: Is help from Soviet Russia or from Red China likely to be as efficient as aid or trade that comes from the West? Speaking of comparative ideologies, is the sort of rigid socialism that one identifies with Moscow or the "eastern bloc" likely to build up a new nation as speedily as identification with the pragmatism of America, Europe, and non-Communist Asia?

The answers to such questions need not be made dogmatically. For we are about to get a contest between two types of help. In Tanzania and Zambia, the Red Chinese have agreed to build a thousand-mile railroad linking the Tanzanian port of Dar-es-Salaam on the Indian Ocean with the Zambian interior. The cost will come to some three hundred million dollars for rails, roadbed, rolling stock and new docking facilities at tidewater in Dar-es-Salaam. The Red Chinese loan will be interest-free. Whether the East African scene will be flooded with Red Chinese laborers as well as with qualified technicians could depend on the rate of construction. Since no Red Chinese would be allowed to leave Peking without carrying with him the "thoughts of Mao" it is obvious that a walking propaganda kit will go along with each technician.

Tanzania and Zambia have been preening themselves on their Chinese deal. But, considering the chaos on the Chinese mainland, it is no sure thing that the Peking government will last long enough to build a new "iron snake" in Africa. Meanwhile Malawi, a landlocked country crammed between Portuguese Mozambique and Zambia, is about to talk things over with a Japanese consortium which has offered to build a railroad linking the Malawi interior with lines that now run to the Indian Ocean. The deal will probably be signed this month, with work starting before the first of next year. The Japanese firm of Nippon Kosei will oversee the work.

So we are apparently about to get a race between the Japanese and the Red Chinese to see who can build the best African railroad in the quickest time. Judging by my own memorable experience in riding from Tokyo to Kyoto last year on the Japanese "wonder train" that travels at 125 miles an hour without jarring a typewriter, I'll bet on the Japanese doing the more satisfactory job.

If Malawi does better for itself by dealing with pragmatic Japan than Tanzania and Zambia in turn turning to Peking, it won't be the first time that an African nation has benefited by steering clear of Communist help. Some four years ago Tom Mboya, Kenya's minister in charge of economic development, thought President Houphouët-Boigny of the Ivory Coast might be making a mistake to rely on close economic ties with the French. But the Ivory Coast has become one of the richer African nations by permitting private capital to operate, while nearby Guinea and Ghana have impoverished themselves by going to socialist extremes. And Kenya, which has actually more or less followed the Ivory Coast pattern under Mboya's planning eye, has done better for itself than Tanzania under President Julius Nyerere's socialist prodding.

Having spent three days at some delightful lodges in or near the Tanzania wild animal reserves, I don't wish to appear ungrateful by mentioning Nyerere's infatuation with "eastern socialism." But the lodges in Serengeti National Park, at Ngorongoro crater and at Lake Manyara Park, which control the traffic of "camera safari" addicts looking to catch a cheetah or a lion in the act of killing, have been turning away hundreds in the tourist seasons. I was told that privately operated lodges can't enlarge their facilities because "Nyerere can't make up his mind as between capitalist and socialist lodge keepers." Kenya, which has a more laissez faire attitude, does better in the way of accommodating tourist volume.

So, without being heated up about it, one can await the issue of the contest between Communist and pragmatic ideas in Africa. It is a good bet that the Communists won't be able to deliver.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A PROUD FATHER, unaware of the sophistication of the youngsters of today, set out to acquaint his small daughter with the value of money. First he explained the variety of coins, then he lined up a penny, a nickel, a dime, a quarter and a dollar bill, and asked her which one she'd choose for herself. She eyes him speculatively for a moment, then said, "I'll take the copper one, Daddy—but I think I'll take the little piece of paper along to wrap it in."

Advertising man David Ogilvie likes the story of the man who asked the clerk at a Madison Avenue gourmet shop, "How much is your best caviar this week?" "Forty-two dollars a pound," was the reply. "Forty-two dollars?" gasped the would-be purchaser. "Why, that shop near the Plaza is selling the best caviar for thirty dollars a pound." "So why don't you buy it there?" asked the clerk. "They're all out of it," admitted the man. "Hah," scoffed the clerk. "When we're out of it, we sell it for FIVE DOLLARS a pound!"

SIGNS:

In the room of a hotel that had just installed a sprinkler system: "Please don't smoke in bed. You may drown yourself."

Star System Returns

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new economics of the film business has brought a breed of superstars who can virtually dictate terms under which they will make movies.

Who are these fortunate few? They number a round dozen: Julie Andrews, Gregory Peck, Richard Burton, Audrey Hepburn, Jack Lemmon, Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, Sidney Poitier, Frank Sinatra, Barbara Streisand, Elizabeth Taylor and John Wayne.

These are stars who can and do earn between $750,000 and a million dollars per film, either in salaries or participation in the profits.

Comments: Burton's draw as a single performer has not been completely tested; his most magnificent deals have been made as part of a team with his wife, Miss Taylor. The position of Miss Streisand on the list is almost an absurdity, since she has not yet appeared on theater screens; but she has made three film deals averaging a million dollars apiece, and that's measurement enough.

Poitier is a recent addition to the list his last three films having been smash hits. Lemmon, Peck and Sinatra remain, although their last few films have produced indifferent results.

Their positions are threatened by Lee Marvin, who is coming up fast on the basis of his Academy Award and recent successes. To this golden dozen should be added four stars who occupy special categories: Sean Connery, Cary Grant, Jerry Lewis, and Elvis Presley.

Comment: Connery is the screen's most consistent money-earner as James Bond, but his box-office value in other roles has not been proven. Grant still commands huge money, but makes only one picture every two or three years, usually for his own company. Lewis can earn upwards of a million as star-producer-director, etc., but his films are specialized. The same is true of Presley, who continues to draw a million dollars for three films a year.

In the next category are numerous stars, some of whom verge upon superstar classification. They include: Warren

Beatty, Marlon Brando, Yul Brynner, James Coburn, Tony Curtis, Doris Day, Sandy Dennis, Kirk Douglas, Clint Eastwood, Henry Fonda, Glenn Ford, James Garner, Rex Harrison, Charlton Heston, William Holden, Bob Hope, Rock Hudson, Deborah Kerr, Burt Lancaster, Shirley MacLaine, Dean Martin, Lee Marvin, Walter Matthau, Robert Mitchum, David Niven, Kim Novak, George Peppard, Anthony Quinn, Debbie Reynolds, Rosalind Russell, James Stewart, Dick Van Dyke, Richard Widmark and Natalie Wood.

Comment: Some of these can attract top money but are limited in their characterizations to special kinds of roles—Harrison, Matthau.

To this list can be added players in three categories: 1. Those who can function as stars in certain films, such as Carroll Baker, Stephen Boyd, Jane Fonda, Lee Remick, Rod Taylor, Rod Taylor; 2. Those who appear infrequently, but always as stars—Fred Astaire, Lucille Ball, Fred MacMurray, Joanne Woodward; 3. The constantly growing list of potential stars—Alan Arkin, Candice Bergen, Robert Redford, Tommy Steele, Raquel Welch.

Of supreme importance to today's film market is another category: the international stars. Some of them occasionally appear in Hollywood pictures. Mostly, because of esthetic or tax reasons, they prefer to work in Europe. But most of their films are financed by American companies.

The international stars: Brigitte Bardot, Michael Caine, Claudia Cardinale, Julie Christie, Albert Finney, Vittorio Gassman, Richard Harris, David Hemmings, Gina Lollobrigida, Sophia Loren, Marcello Mastroianni, Hayley Mills, Jeanne Moreau, Peter O'Toole, Lynn Redgrave, Vanessa Redgrave, Peter Sellers, Omar Sharif, Terence Stamp.

All of these lists are subject to change at any time, as established stars lose their vogue and new players burst forth to take their places. That is the nature of the star system and the reason it is likely to prevail, in one form or another, as long as there are movies.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential campaign, reaching a climax exactly one year from now, will be a mess for both parties if nothing changes in the war in Vietnam or in the public attitude toward it at home.

President Johnson, with his Democrats split on the war and public support for it dwindling, may not only have a tough time getting reelected but even renominated.

Republicans are split on the same subject. Just this week Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Republican Senate leader who has steadfastly backed Johnson's Vietnam policy, rebuked is Republicans he thought were too harsh on Johnson.

Those Republicans being mentioned as their party's likely presidential candidate are divided, too.

Last March, Johnson and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., widened their differences when the latter called for a bombing halt in Vietnam and Johnson said continuing the air strikes was imperative. Kennedy hasn't said much about it since.

While he denies presidential ambitions in 1968 and has publicly pledged support for Johnson, Kennedy has been gaining, and Johnson declining, in public opinion polls on preference about the two men's candidacy.

This week the Gallup Poll showed 51 per cent of those quizzed favored Kennedy to 39 per cent for Johnson. Meanwhile, Johnson has been persistently belabored about the war by Democrats in Congress. If there is no change in the war by October, 1968, Democrats will have a tormented time reconciling their differences. There will have to be some extraordinary flip-flops if the party hopes to look united.

But Republicans can read the polls. Some of them already have done some flip-flopping, an exercise which could be very convenient if public opinion on the war gets worse.

The No. 1 example is Michigan's Gov. George Romney who for most of 1965 solidly backed Johnson on the war after a trip to Vietnam earlier that year. He began to get more restrained and vague before the year's end.

Then he was on again-off-again. Earlier this year he was saying the 1968 presidential candidate with the best chance for election will be the one who convinces voters he can achieve peace "at a reasonably early date." But when he reached the point of saying he had been "brainwashed" by government officials on his trip to Vietnam his standing in the polls started down.

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, denying any intention of being a candidate, had supported Romney but his ratings in the polls steadily went up and this week the Gallup Poll had a new finding.

This was it: of those questioned, 55 to 41 per cent favored a Republican ticket led by Rockefeller and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan to a Democratic ticket with Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Maybe it was only a coincidence, but almost at the very moment this poll was disclosed Rockefeller, who had broadly supported Johnson's Vietnam policy, was reported saying privately he was shifting toward a more moderate position and was no longer wholeheartedly behind Johnson.

Asked about this later, he declined comment by saying he had said nothing about it and wouldn't.

Reagan, a tough-liner on Vietnam, may be becoming a little more restrained, judging from recent statements of his, but not much. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whom the GOP's political pros like, has taken and stood by a hard line. In a recent interview he warned his fellow-contenders for the Republican nomination not to run on a platform of "peace at any price."

And this week, Dirksen, without naming names, cautioned some of his fellow Republican Senators who have been most caustic about Johnson not to demean him for it means demeaning the "prestige of the republic." Dirksen has been steadfast in support of Johnson on the war.

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Goals are a necessary part of life.

If you have no goals, you rust to death.

If you have too few goals, or goals too easily gained, you wind up bored and cranky.

Of course, it is also possible to have too many goals, so many that they leave you confused and frustrated, undecided which to pursue and which to abandon.

Therefore it's a good idea to have two kinds of goals: real goals and daydream goals.

Real goals are the ones you sweat to make true. Daydream goals are more fun. They are the fantasies that tease the mind, things you've never done and probably never will.

Looking over my own list of unwon daydream goals, I find that I have yet to—

Hypnotize a charging rhinoceros with a single glance.

Eat a bird of paradise under glass.

Get the girl who brings coffee around our office to let me open a charge account.

Wallow in a European spa.

Beat my wife three times in a row at gin rummy.

Make a hole in one at golf.

Sip bean soup in the U.S. Senate's lunchroom, or champagne from the slipper of Julie Andrews.

Rent a real live gorilla as a subway bodyguard.

Track mud on a rainy day into the main drawing room of Buckingham Palace.

Finish a book written by Proust, Thomas Mann, James Joyce or Kathleen Windsor.

Build a more stately mansion for my soul, as the swift seasons roll.

Get anything back for a box top that was worth the quarter I also enclosed.

Receive a written apology from an Internal Revenue agent for the honest mistakes I made while following the advice of my barber on how to fill out my 1948 income tax.

Attend a testimonial dinner to a gall bladder surgeon given by his grateful patients.

Receive a standing, 10-minute ovation for any speech I've made to our local PTA.

Permanently fix any leaky faucet.

Lose an ounce while on a "quick, easy diet, guaranteed to melt pounds away as if by magic."

Go on a whale hunt and be the first to call, "Avast, mates, thar she blows."

Make a martini dry enough to satisfy all the hydrophobes who come to any cocktail party I throw.

Cook a wolf or pickle a hermit.

Dissolve an expensive pearl in wine and offer it to a lovely lady with the remark, "Baby, when you go with me, you go first class."

Play a solo on the bongo drums at Carnegie Hall.

Land a job as a traveling salesman demonstrating skin decal at nudist conventions.

Save a millionaire from drowning and be asked to name my own reward.

Yep, there's no doubt about it—it's the daydream goals of life that make living really worthwhile.

Dear Abby:

Unspoken Words Was Rule Here

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate. After nearly 20 years of marriage my husband has asked me for a divorce. He says he needs a wife, not a housekeeper.

Two years ago, in the middle of a heated argument I told my husband that his love-making did nothing for me — that I had only been putting on an act.

Abby, it wasn't exactly the truth. I only said it to hurt him. I never realized that he would take it so to heart. He hasn't touched me or kissed me since that day, and now he wants a divorce.

I would do anything to have my husband back the way he was. I have a fine home, wonderful children, a car of my own, and I don't want a divorce. Please, please, tell me what to do.

SUNK
DEAR SUNK: Unless you can convince your husband that what you said was not true, and you only tried to hurt him, I am afraid you are indeed sunk. There may not be much help for you in my reply, but it may serve to let others know that one seldom regrets unspoken words.

DEAR ABBY: My Angelo says he wants supper to be on the table at 6 o'clock sharp. So I put supper on the table at 6 o'clock and where is Angelo? He is outside looking at the yard, or talking to the neighbor. I yell "Angelo" and he yells back, "One minute." One minute turns out to be one hour. So I take his supper away and heat it up again.

I have reheated his supper as many as three times, and then he says, "Boy, O, boy, are you a rotten cook."

What can I do?
ANGELO'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Give him a 10 minute warning call. Then put the supper on the table hot, and if he doesn't come and get it — give it to him cold.

DEAR ABBY: I know that etiquette demands that ALL personal letters and notes be hand-written, and it is considered very poor manners to use a typewriter on these occasions, but this is my plight: I suffer from arthritis in the fingers of both hands and it is extremely difficult for me to use a pen. I am able, however, to use a typewriter, so I type all my letters and notes. Is it necessary for me to mention in my type written notes that I know better, but because of my arthritis I beg to be excused?

KNOWS BETTER
DEAR KNOWS: I believe that regardless of what the etiquette books say, consideration, convenience and common sense should dictate behavior. I personally appreciate type written notes, the propriety of which never enters my head.

DEAR ABBY: You covered the subject of why a man will usually choose a divorcee over a widow very well, but you could have mentioned another reason.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was.

But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husband was, because if he was all that great she'd still be married to him.

Computers May Go To Work For Physicians

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The computer, a major tool of commerce and industry, soon may become a helpful diagnostic instrument for physicians, a University of Pennsylvania Medical School professor believes.

Dr. Johannes Ipsen, professor of epidemiology and medical statistics, is running tests to see if a computer, properly programmed and then given the right information about a patient, can spot latent diabetes, stroke or heart disease.

He predicts the computer program could be expanded to cover a host of other diseases.

Ipsen says many times there is no clear-cut diagnosis when a patient comes in. The computer would help narrow the field of possible illness by expressing the probability of various diseases.

"What the computer does," Ipsen said in an interview, "is remind the physician to ask the right questions." Then, according to the answers, "it computes the probability of a disease."

If his program gains wide acceptance, Ipsen said, many physicians could start similar programs. He rents time on the computer with about 50 other persons and businesses.

The program might lead to mass screening some day, the professor said.

Information on medical history, age, weight and a few tests on a large number of persons could be run through the computer which would kick back forms on those suffering from a possibly undetected disease.

Thus far, Ipsen has programmed his computer for studies on possible diabetes or heart or stroke victims.

For diabetic studies, he has information stored in the computer on about 15,000 persons—500 of whom were once diabetic. When the medical history of a patient is fed into the computer, it compares it with its memory bank and computes the probability of the patient being diabetic.

Ipsen said the computer will never replace a surgeon's sensitive touch or a psychiatrist's ear, but it may become an effective aid in pinpointing latent diseases that might go undetected.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Unspoken Words Was Rule Here

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate. After nearly 20 years of marriage my husband has asked me for a divorce. He says he needs a wife, not a housekeeper.

Two years ago, in the middle of a heated argument I told my husband that his love-making did nothing for me — that I had only been putting on an act.

Abby, it wasn't exactly the truth. I only said it to hurt him. I never realized that he would take it so to heart. He hasn't touched me or kissed me since that day, and now he wants a divorce.

I would do anything to have my husband back the way he was. I have a fine home, wonderful children, a car of my own, and I don't want a divorce. Please, please, tell me what to do.

DEAR ABBY: Give him a 10 minute warning call. Then put the supper on the table hot, and if he doesn't come and get it — give it to him cold.

DEAR ABBY: I know that etiquette demands that ALL personal letters and notes be hand-written, and it is considered very poor manners to use a typewriter on these occasions, but this is my plight: I suffer from arthritis in the fingers of both hands and it is extremely difficult for me to use a pen. I am able, however, to use a typewriter, so I type all my letters and notes. Is it necessary for me to mention in my type written notes that I know better, but because of my arthritis I beg to be excused?

KNOWS BETTER

DEAR ABBY: I believe that regardless of what the etiquette books say, consideration, convenience and common sense should dictate behavior. I personally appreciate type written notes, the propriety of which never enters my head.

DEAR ABBY: You covered the subject of why a man will usually choose a divorcee over a widow very well, but you could have mentioned another reason.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was.

But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husband was, because if he was all that great she'd still be married to him.

Hazel Cooper Guest Speaker At WSCS Meet

Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist Church met for a carry-in luncheon in the church social room on Wednesday with Miss Hazel Cooper as guest speaker.

President, Mrs. Jane Southward, conducted a brief business session following the luncheon. Roll call of Circles and introduction of guests was made. Mrs. Southward urged people to attend the church-wide study "New Life Mission" to be held at the church Nov. 5-9.

Mrs. Dennis Blecha, program chairman, chose as her subject "Christian Service Through Love" and conducted the devotional period around this theme. She introduced Miss Hazel Cooper as the guest speaker.

Miss Cooper, director of McKelvey Hall for Girls in Columbus, discussed the function of the residence hall. McKelvey Hall is a residence for young girls 18-25 years of age who come to the city as students or as workers and are seeking reasonable housing in a Christian atmosphere. It accommodates 24 girls and is regulated much the same as a college dormitory. Although the residence is a project of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, girls of any religious faith are accepted.

The experiences of Miss Cooper in helping these girls adjust to life away from home, was followed by a question and answer period.

DEAR ABBY: You covered the subject of why a man will usually choose a divorcee over a widow very well, but you could have mentioned another reason.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was.

But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husband was, because if he was all that great she'd still be married to him.

DEAR ABBY: Give him a 10 minute warning call. Then put the supper on the table hot, and if he doesn't come and get it — give it to him cold.

DEAR ABBY: I know that etiquette demands that ALL personal letters and notes be hand-written, and it is considered very poor manners to use a typewriter on these occasions, but this is my plight: I suffer from arthritis in the fingers of both hands and it is extremely difficult for me to use a pen. I am able, however, to use a typewriter, so I type all my letters and notes. Is it necessary for me to mention in my type written notes that I know better, but because of my arthritis I beg to be excused?

KNOWS BETTER

DEAR ABBY: I believe that regardless of what the etiquette books say, consideration, convenience and common sense should dictate behavior. I personally appreciate type written notes, the propriety of which never enters my head.

SOUTHEAST OHIO — Cloudy and cooler with scattered showers or thundershowers likely through Saturday. High Saturday in the lower 70s. Low tonight near 50.

SOUTHWEST OHIO — Partly cloudy and cool this evening followed by increasing cloudiness late tonight and scattered showers on Saturday. Low tonight in the lower and middle 40s. Winds on Lake Erie near the shore east to southeast 15 to 22 knots tonight. Small craft warnings are displayed.

OHIO—Cooler today and tonight. Cloudy with occasional showers and possibly a few thundershowers today and tonight and in central sections most of today. Variable cloudiness north through tonight. High today in the 60s except lower 42 to 52. Mostly cloudy Saturday with scattered showers southwest and in north east sections during the afternoon. A little warmer southwest.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Money in a savings account? Money in a checking account? Money in your pocket? These all add up to a fine sense of security. But as everybody knows, the security of money can disappear. The stock market drops, expenses chew up your savings.

There's another kind of security that is not based on the fleeting, material treasures of life. It is the security needed when sickness strikes, a son or daughter disappoints us, or death takes a loved one. This security chases out doubt and fear. It enables us to go right on living day by day, certain that we will not walk alone. In fact, God has said that He will never leave us nor forsake us.

Discover for yourself this security! In your church you can find those eternal values if you trust in the security of Him who cannot fail.

A SENSE OF SECURITY

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Money in a savings account? Money in a checking account? Money in your pocket? These all add up to a fine sense of security. But as everybody knows, the security of money can disappear. The stock market drops, expenses chew up your savings.

There's another kind of security that is not based on the fleeting, material treasures of life. It is the security needed when sickness strikes, a son or daughter disappoints us, or death takes a loved one. This security chases out doubt and fear. It enables us to go right on living day by day, certain that we will not walk alone. In fact, God has said that He will never leave us nor forsake us.

Discover for yourself this security! In your church you can find those eternal values if you trust in the security of Him who cannot fail.

Only two family names have been associated with its ownership. It occupies a commanding position on the brow of a hill, which curves around the four-lane highway below.

A junior membership in the Pickaway County Historical Society will be given to the Pickaway County resident under eighteen years of age who first correctly identifies the house with the following information: (1) Name of first owner and builder; (2) Date of erection; (3) Location, including township, nearest village, name of highway; (4) Present owner; (5) Present occupant.

Deputy Suspended During Probe of Corpse's Identity

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A Warren County sheriff's deputy has been suspended temporarily while authorities complete their investigation of a decomposed male body found in a field Wednesday.

Sheriff Byron C. Kennard said suspended Deputy Fred Collett had fired at two men when they did not obey his order to halt Sept. 13 in the area where the corpse was found.

Kennard's statement said Collett was in the area on a civil detail when he "observed two male subjects cross Western Row Road under circumstances that caused him to investigate. He called to these subjects to stop and when they failed to do so, he fired his revolver, two rounds, in an effort to stop the subjects."

No charges have been placed against Collett.

Present occupant. All entries should be addressed to Mrs. Ray W. Davis, 120 Montclair Ave., Circleville and must include the name, age and school of the entrant and the name and address of his parents.

No Holiday Lights, No Shopping Season

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — If there are any little girls in Deming named Virginia, they can take heart that there'll be a Santa Claus again this year.

The Deming Chamber of Commerce got more than it bargained for when it decided to cancel this year's community Christmas lighting program due to lack of funds.

Townpeople got a bit critical, with one woman writing: "If you cheap old merchants won't even ask for Christmas lights to put us in a spending mood we'll just shop at neighboring cities where they do appreciate us."

So, a local bottler, Joe Stevinn, who says he was "all shook up just imagining no Christmas lights," and a local auto dealer have started a Christmas decorating fund.

Their goal is $3,000 to buy new lights and pole decorations.

Bleary Eyed Models Stage Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — False lashes fluttering above slightly bleary eyes, five British models showed the latest London look in the final stage of a marathon fashion show that spanned 4,000 miles, two continents and more than 15 hours.

"Verging on hysteria," was the way one model described her condition, as she sat in a clothes-strewn cabin, sipping coffee and touching up her makeup for the final show, held aboard the Queen Elizabeth which docked at her New York pier.

The shipboard show Wednesday night was the third act in a fashion play that opened in the Mayfair Hotel in London and continued aboard a jet plane, 35,000 feet over the Atlantic, before winding up on the not-so-high seas of the Hudson River.

The first show was at 5 a.m. New York time (10 a.m. London time), the second—during which they changed clothes in the plane's galley—at 4 p.m. and the third at about 10 p.m.

"I've been up almost 19 hours," said Sarah Dawson, explaining she and the other girls got involved in the show "by not being told what we were going to do."

Miss Dawson didn't seem tired, however, as she clowned on stage before more than 100 persons and modeled miniskirted, ready-to-wear fashions by London designer Clive Evans.

After the show? "It depends how I feel. If there's a fancy dress ball, I might go," she quipped.

Angelique Tabori disagreed. "I think I'll go straight to bed."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it is unable to find out why a 30-year-old Columbia University art teacher, Ronald Wiedenhoef, was arrested in East Berlin a month ago and held without being allowed visitors.

Wiedenhoef, a New Yorker, was studying at the time of his arrest, the State Department said.

"The mysterious arrest and detention of Mr. Wiedenhoef in East Berlin in pursuit of his doctoral dissertation is most disturbing to the United States," said the department's press officer, Robert J. McCloskey.

"We view this detention as a blatant disregard of the right of an individual as we do similarly the prolonged period of detention of Peter Feinauer," Feinauer, also an American, was sentenced last month to 15 years imprisonment after being held incommunicado for nearly a year.

"We shall continue every effort we can to secure their release," McCloskey said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board is studying the feasibility and need of using aircraft capable of taking off and landing vertically for service between big cities when only short flight distances are involved.

Flight routes covered in the study are Boston-Hartford, Conn.-Providence, R.I.; New York-Newark, N.J.; Philadelphia-Wilmington, Del.-Trenton, N.J.; and Baltimore-Washington.

The board noted there is no operational aircraft capable now of providing such service on an economic basis nor are landing sites available.

But, the CAB added, taking action now instead of waiting for improved technology "will permit coordination of the urban renewal programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development with the problem of obtaining appropriate landing sites in metropolitan areas."

U.S. Half Dollar Here To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The half dollar, unlike the $2 bill, is apparently here to stay.

The Treasury Department plans to mint halves containing 40 per cent silver through next year. Officials are confident the coins will continue to circulate.

Even if the department ultimately decides to remove all silver from half dollars, it still plans to continue making them.

Despite record production of halves, the Treasury has been unable to satisfy the demand for them. It has declared the shortage of other coins at an end.

The department stopped making $2 bills last year because of lack of demand.

Robert A. Wallace, assistant secretary of the Treasury, said half dollars are apparently still being hoarded although more and more of them are now circulating.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it would consider expelling any Arab diplomats in the United States if it's found they had an "improper propaganda relationship" with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

The department responded to questions raised by Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., who wanted to know whether Arab embassies had violated diplomatic protocol by supplying SNCC with anti-Semitic material for a publication put out by the Black Power group.

Ralph Featherstone, SNCC program director, acknowledged Arab embassies were the source of some of the material, which accused American Jews of exploiting Negroes and accused Israelis of committing atrocities against the Arabs.

Capital Footnotes

The Labor Department says the number of workers involved in strikes dropped substantially in August but the total of strikers so far this year is the highest in 15 years. In August, 231,000 workers were involved in 655 strikes, compared with more than one million workers in 630 walkouts in July. The year's totals through August were 2,170,000 workers in 2,089 strikes. The Food and Drug Administration says it will step up research by its own scientists so as to strengthen its role of consumer protection.

"I do not think we ought to pass all these bills with inflated figures, brag to our constituents about what we have done for them, and then pass some directive to the President to cut $5 billion or $7 billion when we have not been able to do it," Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., discussing the battle of the budget between President Johnson and Congress.

The Red and Black

Cheerleaders Introduced By "Red and Black" Staff

By LYNN HATFIELD, PATTY COLEMAN, and CONNIE COLEMAN

Varsity cheerleaders at CHS are Connie Bowers, Bev Carney, Mary Gates, Starr Tipton, Diana Foster, Keitha Wagner and Captain Janie Wiggins.

Connie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bowers, Circle Drive. She has two brothers, Tom a freshman, and Steve a junior at Morehead State University. Her sister, Linda, is a sophomore at the University of Kentucky.

Connie is a senior in the college prep course. Besides being a cheerleader, she is a member of SOS, GAA, EMS, NHS and 4-H. She is secretary of the Senior Class and Treasurer of the cheerleading group. When asked if she thought she encouraged school spirit, she replied, "Yes, I do, but not to a great extent. We can not get kids to yell at games. At pep rallies we do, or if we are behind. We're trying to think of new ways to make them yell."

Besides leading cheers, the girls "make posters for games and sell bumper stickers, and ribbons and are in charge of organized pep rallies."

WHEN asked why she wanted to be a cheerleader, she said, "I'm interested in athletics, and I wanted to boost school spirit. I had been in band, but I wanted to be a bigger part of the game."

Among this year's CHS cheerleaders is brown-haired, blue-eyed Bev Carney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindy Carney, 565 Edgewood.

During Bev's 3 years at CHS, she has spent two years devoted to cheerleading. She is a member of the EMS, NHS, and is president of the Curtain Callers.

Bev feels this year's football team has a spirit superior to any yet. When asked what her responsibility is, Bev replied, "To aim for a great school spirit that will give the team the backing it deserves."

With determination of this kind she feels sure that the CHS students will provide the teams with a real reason to win. After graduation Bev plans to attend Miami University and start concentrating on the future.

MARY GATES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Gates, is in her second year of cheerleading. Mary and her family reside at 290 Lewis Rd. She has two brothers, Jim and Bill and one sister, Sharon.

MARY, known to her classmates as, "a girl with a wonderful personality, is also, a member of GAA, and DECA. She belongs to St. Joseph's Church. Mary was asked, "What is a good cheerleader?" She replied, "A good cheerleader is one who can make the people want to cheer. She has a lot of pep and is interested in her team and audience."

Mary feels this year's football team is really great. Starr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tipton. She has one sister, Valerie, who is in the sixth grade, and brother, Larry, a freshman. She lives at 603 N. Court St. but will be moving to La Marque, Texas in the near future.

Starr is a junior in the college prep course. She is in SOS, GAA, Luther League, and Girl Scouts. She is publicity chairman for SOS.

Asked if she thought she encouraged school spirit, she replied, "As yet, I have not really done anything to improve our school spirit, but the best I can do is to be enthusiastic and show the students I really care about how our guys play the game on Friday night. As Coach Starr, says, "Enthusiasm is contagious. Let's have an epidemic!"

AS a cheerleader she said, "I do my best to keep up school spirit during the week and I give it all I've got at each game. Being a cheerleader is harder than anyone thinks, but it's worth it."

When asked why she wanted to be a cheerleader she answered, "I wanted to be a cheerleader because I remember how I loved cheering in the stands last year and how badly I wish I could be one of the girls who were doing a great job in leading the cheers."

Diana Foster is a senior in the college prep course. She resides at Knollwood Village with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Foster, and a brother Brian. She is in GAA, SOS, EMS, and NHS. She is, also, secretary of NHS.

When asked why she wanted to be a cheerleader she replied, "It's the only way that girls can participate in sports in our school."

Keitha, a senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wagner. She has a brother, Max, who is a freshman.

KEITHA is enrolled in college prep and is planning to attend Central Michigan University. She is president of GAA and secretary of Curtain Callers.

When asked if she had encouraged school spirit by being a cheerleader she replied, "I think I have helped support our team, and I hope I can continue to encourage school spirit."

Janie Wiggins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Wiggins is captain of the CHS cheerleaders.

Janie is in the college prep course. After graduation she plans to attend the University of Kentucky and major in physical education. She is a member of GAA and SOS.

When asked if she had encouraged school spirit she replied, "All of us have tried to boost school spirit. Spirit at CHS is good but I want it to be "great". I think a large cheering section would really help. Kids seem to be afraid to yell but they shouldn't be."

As a cheerleader she said, "I try to get the crowd to cheer with me so that our Tigers will know we are behind them all the way."

Club Initials Are Explained

By CONNIE COLEMAN and DORIS McLAUGHLIN

Many people do not understand the abbreviations used for clubs at CHS. Perhaps the name in full and explanation of the purpose will help.

NHS stands for National Honor Society. The purpose of this club is to create enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote leadership and to develop character. A person must have a 3.5 average to be eligible for membership.

Girl's Athletic Association (GAA), is to promote interest among the girls in athletic activities. It increases the members' knowledge of sports, and provides an opportunity for physical mental, and social development. Good sportsmanship and participation in the various physical education activities is a goal for all members.

The English Merit Society, EMS, is open to students with a 3.5 average in English. In the spring the EMS publishes and sells a magazine, "Hairs from the Tiger's Tail," composed of original work produced by high school students.

The Service Over Self, SOS, Clubs at CHS strive to enrich the lives of members through fellowship, service, and the everyday living of religious principles.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-hour feature films are galloping off with the television season's top ratings to date and a lot of people in the industry are thinking about adding more long programs.

Since the industry apparently regards the length of shows as significant rather than content, the viewer may soon find that on several evenings a week a network will have two long programs in prime time. CBS has already started it, with "Cimarron Strip" running for 90 minutes followed by a two-hour broadcast of a feature film.

But there are others who are not so sure that the popularity of feature movies is anything more than normal reaction to a definite programming gambit in use by all three major networks. They plan to wait awhile before proclaiming that half-hour comedies as well as one-hour action stories and westerns—traditionally TV staples—are, if not dead, declining in ratings.

Meanwhile, there are reports in the trade papers about the pending demise of a number of shows with poor early ratings.

Mentioned were NBC's "Maya" which so far has indicated that even a lovable elephant star is no match for Jackie Gleason, its heavyweight competition. CBS' "Dundee and the Culhane" got off to a dull start and disappointing reactions. ABC, with more new shows than the other two networks, also seems to have more trouble spots in its schedule.

Its biggest problem is "Good Company," trying to do battle with two ratings giants—NBC's "Dean Martin Show" and the CBS Thursday night movie. In Thursday nights program F. Lee Bailey, the aggressive criminal lawyer who is a surprisingly different host in the series, was conducting a stilted, sober-sides interview with Sean Connery who in person is hardly the dashing character he portrays in James Bond films. It was no match for the power displayed on the other channels—Phil Silvers and Janet Leigh working with Martin; and a star-studded cast headed by Rex Harrison in "The Yellow Rolls Royce" a popular old movie.

With CBS' third Barbra Streisand show coming up next Wednesday and its 90-minute original drama, "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night" following a week later, the three networks will begin to unwrap some of their special programs. From the fourth week of October through the shopping season ending on Christmas, they will be coming thick and fast.

Recommended tonight: "Raymond Burr visits Vietnam," NBC, 10-11 EDT, the actor's impressions of the country, its people and our soldiers after more than 10 visits to our troops.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-hour feature films are galloping off with the television season's top ratings to date and a lot of people in the industry are thinking about adding more long programs.

Since the industry apparently regards the length of shows as significant rather than content, the viewer may soon find that on several evenings a week a network will have two long programs in prime time. CBS has already started it, with "Cimarron Strip" running for 90 minutes followed by a two-hour broadcast of a feature film.

But there are others who are not so sure that the popularity of feature movies is anything more than a normal reaction to a definite programming gambit in use by all three major networks. They plan to wait awhile before proclaiming that half-hour comedies as well as one-hour action stories and westerns—traditionally TV staples—are, if not dead, declining in ratings.

Meanwhile, there are reports in the trade papers about the pending demise of a number of shows with poor early ratings.

Mentioned were NBC's "Maya," which so far has indicated that even a lovable elephant star is no match for Jackie Gleason, its heavyweight competition. CBS' "Dundee and the Culhane" got off to a dull start and disappointing reactions. ABC, with more new shows than the other two networks, also seems to have more trouble spots in its schedule.

Its biggest problem is "Good Company," trying to do battle with two ratings giants—NBC's "Dean Martin Show" and the CBS Thursday night movie. In Thursday nights program F. Lee Bailey, the aggressive criminal lawyer who is a surprisingly diffident host in the series, was conducting a stilted, sober-sides interview with Sean Connery who in person is hardly the dashing character he portrays in James Bond films. It was no match for the power displayed on the other channels—Phil Silvers and Janet Leigh working with Martin; and a star-studded cast headed by Rex Harrison in "The Yellow Rolls Royce" a popular old movie.

With CBS' third Barbara Streisand show coming up next Wednesday and its 90-minute original drama, "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night" following a week later, the three networks will begin to unwrap some of their special programs. From the fourth week of October through the shopping season ending on Christmas, they will be coming thick and fast.

Recommended tonight: "Raymond Burr visits Vietnam," NBC, 10-11 EDT, the actor's impressions of the country, its people and our soldiers after more than 10 visits to our troops.

Pickaway Sports Perspective

By STEVE JONES

A word about polls . . . They are not necessarily accurate but merely represent the combined opinion of many sportswriters.

Polls help to keep fans aware of the better teams in the state. To reach the Top Ten, a school must consistently produce a winning record and must play in a traditionally tough league or against teams that are consistently good.

Frequently teams are named, particularly in the first polls, that should not be named. Logan Elm, for instance, received four votes in the first class A poll. The vote was probably based on a story in "Buckeye Football", a magazine compiled before the start of the season which named Logan Elm as the favorite in the Scioto Valley Conference.

Circleville has a fine 4-0 record this year and has won 11 consecutive games, but has not received any votes. Washington C. H., another fine South Central Ohio League team is undefeated, but has not received recognition in the polls. The league teams have an 11-7 record against non-loop teams, not too impressive a record considering they have not played a "big name" team.

Wilmington lost to Hamilton Taft and Springfield South, possibly the two better known football schools throughout the years. But neither is mentioned in present polls.

In contrast to the SCOL there is the All-American Conference. Canton McKinley, Massillon and Steubenville, all conference members are in the top ten. All are currently undefeated.

The conference schools, which also includes Niles McKinley and Warren G. Harding High School, have not lost a game outside the league. They are situated in an area noted for producing excellent football teams and individuals.

Comments by SCOL coaches: Maurice Pfeifer of Washington C. H. . . . "The old desire's back. This game (Washington's 22-14 win over Wilmington) will mean a lot of confidence for our kids. Wilmington had a good ball club with excellent balance, but are not as consistent as they need to be."

Jim Knowles of Wilmington . . . "With officiating like we had Friday night, it tears down everything you try to teach the kids about play on the field."

In defense of officials, they have no time to mull over their decisions. They cannot, as does the football coach, view films after the game and correct their "mistakes".

A so-called "bad call" is one of the breaks of the game. They will average out during the course of a game. Officials expect to have coaches disagree with calls, but they should not be subjected to criticism after game films have been viewed.

The Big Ten Conference feels so strongly about this it has a rule which forbids coaches to criticize officials for apparent errors which show up in films of the game.

Injured Browns Show Improvement

CLEVELAND (AP) — Here's the latest medical report on Cleveland Browns:

Frank Ryan—Injured fingers, sprained ankles and bruised shoulder much better, will be ready for Pittsburgh at the stadium Saturday night.

Gary Collins — Bruised right leg healing fast, will be ready.

Gary Collins — Sore throat hanging on but he'll be in there against the Steelers.

Milt Morin—cast is off his injured knee and he's working on strengthening his legs.

Cliff McNeil — Left arm still in cast from shoulder to wrist.

Ron Duncan — May have to have a knee operation.

The Browns have been diligently studying films of their pesky foes from down the turnpike — particularly last year's 16-6 defeat at Pittsburgh. More pleasant viewing is the rerun of the Browns' 42-14 victory over the Steelers at Municipal Stadium a year ago.

Another sellout crowd is expected for the annual Saturday evening affair.

McClain-Washington Rivalry Is Oldest

One of Ohio's oldest high school football rivalries will be renewed Friday night when the Blue Lions of Washington Court House journey to Greenfield McClain.

The series started in 1904, back in the days when a touchdown was worth only five points. Greenfield won that first contest, 11-10, but Washington came back later that same year to defeat the Tigers. Friday night's game will be at least the 73rd meeting of these two South Central Ohio League rivals.

Three Americans In Tourney Lead

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—America's Doug Sanders, Billy Casper and Gardner Dickinson and 22-year-old Englishman Brian Barnes went into the second round today as leaders of the 72-hole Alcan Golfer of the Year Tournament—and the weatherman predicted stormy conditions for the next three days.

Sanders, of Tulsa, Okla., Casper, of Peacock Gap, Calif., and Dickinson, of Lost Tree Village, Fla., all shot four-under-par 68s in the first round and the only English player to match them was young Barnes.

Sanders said "The old course at St. Andrews was nice to us yesterday. But I wonder how long that's going to last."

The sun was shining Thursday and there was only a slight wind as 19 golfers—11 Americans, seven Britons and New Zealanders Bob Charles—began chasing the first prize of $55,000. That's the biggest first prize ever offered in professional golf.

Peter Alliss of England and Bobby Nichols of Louisville, Ky., and Gay Brewer, the reigning U. S. Masters champion from Dallas, Tex., were bracketed at 69—one shot behind the leaders.

Come-from-Behind Win at Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Hoss, after running third much of the way, streaked to a one-half length victory in the featured eighth race at Lebanon Raceway Thursday night.

The victor paid $9.00, $4.40 and $4.20. Hoss, a 6-year-old gelding, driven by Mark Ferguson of Amboy, Ind., covered the one mile in 2:06 4-5.

Finishing second was Cheekie Vic who paid $4.00 and $2.80. Amish Boost showed for $4.00.

The daily double paid $106.80 as Chief Tom Tom won the first race and Miss Kashan captured the second.

The 1,651 fans wagered $75,627.

Colts, Rams, Packers All Favored

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and Baltimore Colts should roll along toward their big battle in Baltimore Oct. 15 by knocking off the 49ers and the Bears this weekend as the pro football season begins to heat up in the midst of the World Series.

Green Bay figures to get even for that opening day tie with Detroit in the first rematch of the NFL season and Joe Namath should give that south Oakland defense more than it can handle at Shea Stadium.

An 8-4 record last week brought the season total to 25-9-1 (NFL 17-6-1 and AFL 8-3). Let's try again. All games are Sunday unless otherwise indicated.

NFL

Cleveland 24, Pittsburgh 21 (Saturday night)—Watch out for this one. Steelers always rough for Browns even when they were in the cellar but loss of Bill Nelsen was tough blow. Forget the whole bit if Frank Ryan's shoulder keeps him out. We'll take a raincheck.

Los Angeles 30, San Francisco 17—Might be spot for Ram let down after tough Dallas test but this is war — San Francisco vs. Los Angeles. Rams won preseason game 34-7 and running attack even stronger than expected.

Baltimore 31, Chicago 14 — John Unitas has found a new target in Ray Perkins to go with Willie Richardson and John Mackey. Colts have most explosive offense in league and Bears have one of worst, except for Gale Sayers.

Green Bay 21, Detroit 10 — Lions ran up 17-0 lead on Packers in opener when Green Bay was lucky to get tie. Ailing Bart Starr gives way to Zeke Bratkowski. Packer defense will carry the day. They have given up only 27 points in three games.

Dallas 31, Washington 30 — They are fighting for first or a piece of first in the Capital Division. Clubs split two wild ones last year, Cowboys winning 31-30 and Skins 34-31. Time for Dallas to get move on if it's going to successfully defend.

St. Louis 27, Minnesota 17 — Young Jim Hart came into his own last week against Detroit.

Vikings still having troubles, except for fourth quarter, but Joe Kapp may help. Card defense showing signs of wear and tear.

Philadelphia 39, Atlanta 21 — Eagles hard to figure but Norman Snead should ruin Falcons' first home game. Atlanta can't keep that rush line off its passer.

New York 34, New Orleans 21 — And when were the Giants 10-point favorites last? Fran Tarkenton should have big day but that Giant defense still leaks. Giants' home opener.

AFL

New York 21, Oakland 20 (Saturday night) — If Namath is hot, the Jets should win by a nose. Oakland thinks this is the year and Raiders' stingy defense has given up only 28 points in three games.

San Diego 30, Boston 20 — Chargers won first game in San Diego by two touchdowns and get big break in transfer of second game to home stadium after World Series conflict in Boston.

Buffalo 14, Denver 10 — Bills still bogged down in bad slump but Broncos have given up 21 touchdowns in five games. That should be enough tonic to snap Buffalo out of it.

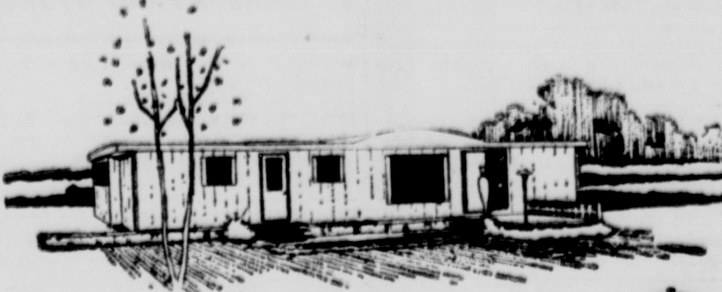

Kansas City 35, Miami 14 — Chiefs take it out on Dolphins after last week's loss to Oakland.

Houston has the bye.

Three Americans In Tourney Lead

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—America's Doug Sanders, Billy Casper and Gardner Dickinson and 22-year-old Englishman Brian Barnes went into the second round today as leaders of the 72-hole Acan Golfers of the Year Tournament—and the weatherman predicted stormy conditions for the next three days.

Sanders, of Tulsa, Okla., Casper, of Peacock Gap, Calif., and Dickinson, of Lost Tree Village, Fla. all shot four-under-par 68s in the first round and the only English player to match them was young Barnes.

Sanders said "The old course at St. Andrews was nice to us yesterday. But I wonder how long that's going to last."

The sun was shining Thursday and there was only a slight wind as 19 golfers—11 Americans, seven Britons and New Zealanders Bob Charles—began chasing the first prize of $55,000. That's the biggest first prize ever offered in professional golf.

Peter Alliss of England and Bobby Nichols of Louisville, Ky., and Gay Brewer, the reigning U. S. Masters champion from Dallas, Tex., were bracketed at 69—one shot behind the leaders.

Come-from-Behind Win at Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Hoss, after running third much of the way, streaked to a one-half length victory in the featured eighth pace at Lebanon Raceway Thursday night.

The victor paid $9.00, $4.40 and $4.20. Hoss, a 6-year-old gelding, driven by Mark Ferguson of Amboy, Ind., covered the one mile in 2:06 4-5.

Finishing second was Cheekie Vic who paid $4.00 and $2.80. Amish Boost showed for $4.00.

The daily double paid $106.80 as Chief Tom Tom won the first race and Miss Kashan captured the second.

The 1,851 fans wagered $75,627.

Colts, Rams, Packers All Favored

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and Baltimore Colts should roll along toward their big battle in Baltimore Oct. 15 by knocking off the 49ers and the Bears this weekend as the pro football season begins to heat up in the midst of the World Series.

Green Bay figures to get even for that opening day tie with Detroit in the first rematch of the NFL season and Joe Namath should give that south Oakland defense more than it can handle at Shea Stadium.

An 8-4 record last week brought the season total to 25-9-1 (NFL 17-6-1 and AFL 8-3). Let's try again. All games are Sunday unless otherwise indicated.

NFL
Cleveland 24, Pittsburgh 21 (Saturday night)—Watch out for this one. Steelers always rough for Browns even when they were in the cellar but loss of Bill Nelsen was tough blow. Forget the whole bit if Frank Ryan's shoulder keeps him out. We'll take a raincheck.
Los Angeles 30, San Francisco 17—Might be spot for Ram let down after tough Dallas test but this is war — San Francisco vs. Los Angeles. Rams won preseason game 34-7 and running attack even stronger than expected.

Baltimore 31, Chicago 14 — John Unitas has found a new target in Ray Perkins to go with Willie Richardson and John Mackey. Colts have most explosive offense in league and Bears have one of worst, except for Gale Sayers.

Green Bay 21, Detroit 10 — Lions ran up 17-0 lead on Packers in opener when Green Bay was lucky to get tie. Ailing Bart Starr gives way to Zeke Bratkowski. Packer defense will carry the day. They have given up only 27 points in three games.

Dallas 31, Washington 30 — They are fighting for first or a piece of first in the Capitol Division. Clubs split two wild ones last year, Cowboys winning 31-30 and Skins 34-31. Time for Dallas to get move on if it's going to successfully defend.

St. Louis 27, Minnesota 17 — Young Jim Hart came into his own last week against Detroit.

Vikings still having troubles, except for fourth quarter, but Joe Kapp may help. Card defense showing signs of wear and tear.

Philadelphia 30, Atlanta 21 — Eagles hard to figure but Norman Sneed should ruin Falcons' first home game. Atlanta can't keep that rush line off its passer.

New York 34, New Orleans 21 — And when were the Giants 10-point favorites last? Fran Tarkenton should have big day but that Giant defense still leaks. Giants' home opener.

AFL
New York 21, Oakland 20 (Saturday night) — If Namath is hot, the Jets should win by a nose. Oakland thinks this is the year and Raiders' stingy defense has given up only 28 points in three games.

San Diego 30, Boston 20 — Chargers won first game in San Diego by two touchdowns and get big break in transfer of second game to home stadium after World Series conflict in Boston.

Buffalo 14, Denver 10 — Bills still bogged down in bad slump but Broncos have given up 21 touchdowns in five games. That should be enough tonic to snap Buffalo out of it.

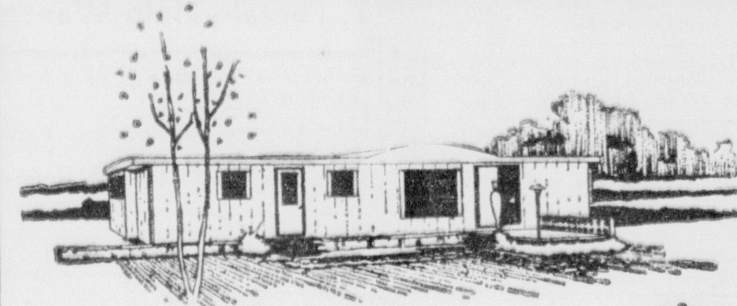

Kansas City 35, Miami 14 — Chiefs take it out on Dolphins after last week's loss to Oakland.

Houston has the bye.

Lonborg, Yaztrszewski Pace Red Sox

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jim Lonborg woke up today and knew he was on the road for real. Carl Yaztrszewski woke up and knew how good it felt to be able to sleep without taking a sleeping pill.

Collectively, the Boston Red Sox knew how it felt to be even with the St. Louis Cardinals again in the World Series.

The Red Sox pulled even at 1-1 Thursday by whipping the Cardinals 5-0 in Boston behind the one-hit pitching of Lonborg and the two-homer slugging of Yaztrszewski.

The teams then moved to St. Louis where the Series will resume Saturday with Gary Bell, 13-13, pitching for the Red Sox and Nelson Briles, 14-5 going for the Cardinals.

Lonborg produced his masterpiece — he retired the first 19 batters he faced and didn't allow a hit until Julian Javier doubled with two out in the eighth — after forsaking his own bed again for a room at a downtown Boston hotel.

Yaztrszewski, on the other hand, slept in his own bed Wednesday night, but he had to take a pill to get to sleep.

"I just wanted to make sure I got a good night's sleep," explained Lonborg, who did the same thing last Saturday night before pitching the pennant-clinching game against Minnesota.

He stayed at the hotel both times because he wanted to simulate road conditions. On the road there's no one to bother him the night before he pitches, and his record has shown the difference. At home this season he was 8-5, on the road 14-4.

Yaztrszewski has his own sleeping problems.

"I'm a little nervous when

I'm trying to go to sleep and sometimes I take a sleeping pill," explained the American League's Triple Crown winner who exploded from a hitless first game to a three-hit, four-run-batted-in second game.

"I took a pill last night, and I had nine hours of sleep," Yaztrszewski said Thursday. "I won't need one tonight because we don't play tomorrow."

As nervous as he is away from the ball park — "I'm very nervous when I'm home eating breakfast" — Boston's brilliant left fielder is completely calm once he reaches the playing site.

Before the second game of the Series, Yaztrszewski passed up batting practice because he had taken 20 minutes postgame bat work the day before. Instead, he climbed onto the trainer's table and took a 45-minute nap.

"When I don't take batting practice, I usually take a nap," he said. "The trainer woke me up at about a quarter to 12, and I felt great."

The Cardinals didn't feel too good a couple of hours later when Yaztrszewski socked a 380-foot bases-empty homer in the fourth inning and a 430-foot blast with two on in the seventh.

"When I hit the first homer, I told Jim, 'You have enough, Big Guy. Go get 'em!'" Lonborg certainly did get them.

For the first 6-1-3 innings, the 24-year-old right hander allowed only one swing that resembled a hit — a hard ground ball that second baseman Jerry Adair backhanded and fired off-balance to first.

Then in the seventh Lonborg's chance to equal Don Larsen's perfect game feat in the 1956 Series evaporated. Curt Flood worked the count to 3-2, fouled off two pitches and then watched as the next pitch dipped low and outside for the fourth ball.

In the next inning, Lonborg also lost his no-hitter. He retired the first two batters on grounders, but Julian Javier swung at the first pitch and lined it down the left field line for a clean double.

That was the only hit the Cardinals got, and Lonborg became the fourth hurler to pitch a one-hitter in a Series game.

"I didn't care about the walk," said Lonborg, a prime candidate for the AL's Cy Young Award. "I'm not after my perfect game — yet. The no-hitter is what I wanted."

"Javier hit a hanging slider. As soon as I threw it, I wanted it back. It was the only bad pitch I made all day."

"The no-hitter is the one goal that has eluded me during this fabulous season. I pitched in the All-Star game, I won 20 games (22, to be exact) and I pitched in the World Series. I'll get that no-hitter some day."

The Red Sox certainly wouldn't mind if that day is next Monday when Lonborg is scheduled to start the fifth game.

In the meantime, he'll have to recover from a blister on his right thumb.

"It developed in the seventh inning, and it hurt his breaking ball at the end," Boston Manager Dick Williams said. "But there never was any thought of taking him out. He had a calloused area on the thumb, and when he pitches as hard as he did today sometimes it splits open."

While Lonborg was closing the doors on the Cardinals, who had collected 10 hits in the first game, Yaztrszewski was breaking the game open.

He led off the fourth inning by rocketing a one-strike pitch from Dick Hughes about a dozen rows into the right field stands. After Boston scored on Rico Petrocelli's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the sixth, Yaztrszewski went to work again.

After Ron Willis walked Jose Tartabull and gave up a single to Dalton Jones, Yaz unloaded a blast off Joe Hoerner into the right-center field seats behind the Boston bullpen.

"I was going for home runs all way," the left-handed slugger said. "Against Gibson (St. Louis' Bob Gibson) I didn't go for homers because I didn't feel really sharp. I just wanted to lay the bat on the ball."

"But when you feel good, you naturally go for home runs, and I felt exceptionally good. I just wanted to hit one out, shake something up."

Lonborg, Yaztrszemski Pace Red Sox

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jim Lonborg woke up today and knew he was on the road for real. Carl Yaztrszemski woke up and knew how good it felt to be able to sleep without taking a sleeping pill.

Collectively, the Boston Red Sox knew how it felt to be even with the St. Louis Cardinals again in the World Series.

The Red Sox pulled even at 1-1 Thursday by whipping the Cardinals 5-0 in Boston behind the one-hit pitching of Lonborg and the two-homer slugging of Yaztrszemski.

The teams then moved to St. Louis where the Series will resume Saturday with Gary Bell, 13-13, pitching for the Red Sox and Nelson Briles, 14-5 going for the Cardinals.

Lonborg produced his masterpiece — he retired the first 19 batters he faced and didn't allow a hit until Julian Javier doubled with two out in the eighth — after forsaking his own bed again for a room at a downtown Boston hotel.

Yaztrszemski, on the other hand, slept in his own bed Wednesday night, but he had to take a pill to get to sleep.

"I just wanted to make sure I got a good night's sleep," explained Lonborg, who did the same thing last Saturday night before pitching the pennant-clinching game against Minnesota.

He stayed at the hotel both times because he wanted to simulate road conditions. On the road there's no one to bother him the night before he pitches, and his record has shown the difference. At home this season he was 8-5, on the road 14-4.

Yaztrszemski has his own sleeping problems.

"I'm a little nervous when

I'm trying to go to sleep and sometimes I take a sleeping pill," explained the American League's Triple Crown winner who exploded from a hitless first game to a three-hit, four-run-batted-in second game.

"I took a pill last night, and I had nine hours of sleep," Yaztrszemski said Thursday. "I won't need one tonight because we don't play tomorrow."

As nervous as he is away from the ball park — "I'm very nervous when I'm home eating breakfast" — Boston's brilliant left fielder is completely calm once he reaches the playing site.

Before the second game of the Series, Yaztrszemski passed up batting practice because he had taken 20 minutes postgame bat work the day before. Instead, he climbed onto the trainer's table and took a 45-minute nap.

"When I don't take batting practice, I usually take a nap," he said. "The trainer woke me up at about a quarter to 12, and I felt great."

The Cardinals didn't feel too good a couple of hours later when Yaztrszemski socked a 380-foot bases-empty homer in the fourth inning and a 430-foot blast with two on in the seventh.

"When I hit the first homer, I told Jim, 'You have enough, Big Guy. Go get 'em,'" Lonborg certainly did get them.

For the first 6 1/3 innings, the 24-year-old right-hander allowed only one swing that resembled a hit — a hard ground ball that second baseman Jerry Adair backhanded and fired off-balance to first.

Then in the seventh Lonborg's chance to equal Don Larsen's perfect game feat in the 1956 Series evaporated. Curt Flood worked the count to 3-2, fouled off two pitches and then watched as the next pitch dipped low and outside for the fourth ball.

In the next inning, Lonborg also lost his no-hitter. He retired the first two batters on grounders, but Julian Javier swung at the first pitch and lined it down the left field line for a clean double.

That was the only hit the Cardinals got, and Lonborg became the fourth hurler to pitch a one-hitter in a Series game.

"I didn't care about the walk," said Lonborg, a prime candidate for the AL's Cy Young Award. "I'm not after my perfect game — yet. The no-hitter is what I wanted."

"Javier hit a hanging slider. As soon as I threw it, I wanted it back. It was the only bad pitch I made all day."

"The no-hitter is the one goal that has eluded me during this fabulous season. I pitched in the All-Star game, I won 20 games (22, to be exact) and I pitched in the World Series. I'll get that no-hitter some day."

The Red Sox certainly wouldn't mind if that day is next Monday when Lonborg is scheduled to start the fifth game.

In the meantime, he'll have to recover from a blister on his right thumb.

"It developed in the seventh inning, and it hurt his breaking ball at the end," Boston Manager Dick Williams said. "But there never was any thought of taking him out. He had a calloused area on the thumb, and when he pitches as hard as he did today sometimes it splits open."

While Lonborg was closing the doors on the Cardinals, who had collected 10 hits in the first game, Yaztrszemski was breaking the game open.

He led off the fourth inning by rocketing a one-strike pitch from Dick Hughes about a dozen rows into the right field stands. After Boston scored on Rico Petrocelli's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the sixth, Yaztrszemski went to work again.

After Ron Willis walked Jose Tartabull and gave up a single to Dalton Jones, Yaz unloaded a blast off Joe Hoerner into the right-center field seats behind the Boston bullpen.

"I was going for home runs all way," the left-handed slugger said. "Against Gibson (St. Louis' Bob Gibson) I didn't go for homers because I didn't feel really sharp. I just wanted to lay the bat on the ball."

"But when you feel good, you naturally go for home runs, and I felt exceptionally good. I just wanted to hit one out, shake something up."

Red Sox Heroes' Hopes Come True

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Carl Yaztrszemski and Jim Lonborg, the big men on the Boston Red Sox, are a couple of pleasant fellows who like to kid with people, even going so far as making predictions in jest.

Now their crystal ball forecasts are virtually coming true in the World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I was kidding around and told someone I would hit two homers and get three hits today — but I was only kidding," Yaztrszemski said Thursday after the Red Sox squared the Series at one game apiece with a 5-0 victory in Boston.

Lonborg joked about pitching a no-hitter before he took the mound for the second game.

Yaztrszemski, the American League's Triple Crown champion, made good on his prediction, belting a pair of homers, good for four runs batted in, and then singling in the eighth.

Lonborg just missed on his prediction, losing a no-hit bid on Julian Javier's two out double in the eighth inning. Gentleman Jim had to settle for a one-hitter, only the fourth in World Series history.

For a while, it looked as if Lonborg would match Don Larsen, who pitched a perfect game in a 2-0 victory for the New York Yankees against the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956.

Yaz connected for his first Series blast by lining a low fast ball into the right field stands for a 1-0 Boston lead in the fourth.

"It was a good pitch, but I hit it just right," the slugging outfielder said. "I felt good, real sharp."

The Cardinals' scouting report apparently missed something on Yaztrszemski.

With runners on first and second and one out in the seventh, southpaw Joe Hoerner was summoned from the bullpen to pitch to Boston's left swinger. Yaz promptly unloaded on a 2-2 pitch and sent a booming shot into the bleachers beyond the Boston bullpen in right center.

In a similar situation just last Saturday, the Minnesota Twins called on southpaw ace Jim Merritt to face Yaz in the seventh inning. The result: a three-run homer in a 6-4 victory.

Lonborg, a 24-year-old right-hander, just missed reaching the only goal that he failed to accomplish during a 22-9 regular season.

"The no-hitter is the one goal that has eluded me during this fabulous season," the lanky hurler said. "I pitched in the All-Star game, I won 20 and I pitched in the World Series. I'll get that no-hitter some day."

"I was joking about the no-hitter and going for it after we got that 5-0 lead," he said. "Then when Javier hit that hanging slider, it was agony for me — like someone sticking a knife through me. I was sick."

"Then Ellie (catcher Elston Howard) came out and told me to bear down. He said we had two outs and let's get the next batter."

Superintendent Writes Series On School Program, Policies

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a series of regularly scheduled articles written by Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of city schools.

By FRITZ JACOBS
City School Superintendent

The opportunity to communicate with our school community through a regular newspaper column is welcomed. The school system is most anxious to report information regarding school program, policies, philosophies, and announcements to the public in a manner that will be authentic and free of rumor tendencies. We plan to do so through this regular type of news reporting.

As a beginning I would like to report on the opening of school and some of the statistical data that is of general interest to the public. School opened on Sept. 5, with 3,280 students reporting. This number has recently increased to 3,323 — the largest enrollment in the history of our school system. At the close of last school year enrollment was 3,218. Our new figure represents an increase of 105 since the close of last school year.

Ordinarily this would not be of great concern. However, this year we find ourselves absorbing this increase with six teachers less than we employed in 1966-67. This cutback was necessitated by the loss of an additional operating levy and has resulted in some overcrowded classrooms. It was also necessary to reduce programs such as Driver Education from the regular school day, elementary Physical Education, etc. It is our hope that this trend can cease and that the necessary programs will return to normal next year.

It was possible, though extremely difficult, to staff our schools this year. A nationwide teacher shortage exists and those districts unable to provide attractive salary schedules have found it necessary to influence some teachers who had retired or planned to retire to return to the classroom as well as encouraging others to teach one-half, five-eighths, and seven-eighths days. The competition in the area of teacher recruitment will become increasingly severe. We are indeed fortunate in Circleville to be reasonably well staffed at the present time. Every effort has been made to retain the essentials of a good educational program within the framework of existing limited financial ability. Any further cutbacks will seriously effect our continued chartering by the State Department of Education. We have been able to hold the line at the present time and our existing program is within minimum standards.

Next week we will discuss the makeup of our staff, both certificated and non-certificated together with program offerings throughout the school system.

Violence Tapers in Truck Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Violence has tapered off in the steel truckers' strike, but an economic vise gripped steel producers and users in seven states.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan said, "We are prepared to put all the manpower necessary on the road to put an end to lawless and violent acts."

Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer ordered State Police Commissioner Frank McKetta to take a personal hand in directing reinforced patrols in western Pennsylvania, a hotbed of violence.

But the steel industry, which ships more than 50 per cent of its products by truck, was still feeling the economic pinch and other industries—from highway builders to grocery stores—were beginning to feel the affects as the strike closed off supply and delivery lines.

The Ohio Contractors Association said $154 million in highway projects were stopped and another $81 million were jeopardized. The western Pennsylvania Heavy & Highways Contractors Association said millions of dollars of construction projects were snarled and 4,000 tradesmen idled because concrete shipments were halted.

In Pittsburgh, sheriff's deputies rode shotgun to get bread delivered to a supermarket chain north of the city. Restaurants and hospitals at Cleveland, Ohio, say they're having trouble getting frozen foods and fresh meat.

The wildcat strike by 10,000 to 20,000 independent truckers cut back steel production by 30 per cent last month, according to Iron Age magazine.

River's Lighthouse May Be Preserved

NEW YORK (AP) — The state's Hudson River Valley Commission has offered a ray of hope for the preservation of five old lighthouses along the river.

The old landmarks are now slated for demolition by the Coast Guard but the commission recommended Thursday they be acquired and converted for use as museums, research centers and park buildings.

The lighthouses are located at Tarrytown, Kingston, Saugerties, Hudson and Esopus Meadows.

Former Browns Player Calls Negro Conference

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former Cleveland Browns defensive back Walter Beach has called a statewide "black unity" conference for today and Saturday at Karamu House.

Beach said the purpose of the conference is to narrow the communications gap between the moderate and militant views in the Negro communities. The goal is to establish a statewide forum for dissemination of ideas and viewpoints on education, politics, culture, economics, youth and law, Beach said.

Literature circulated by Beach's organization says the conference is closed to news media and to whites.

Ford Strike Nears Record

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union strike against Ford Motor Co. reached its 30th day today, becoming the fifth longest national strike in auto industry history.

The strike has affected segments of the nation's economy. No settlement is in sight.

Labor contract negotiations that began 118 days ago, on July 11, have produced no agreement on any section of the contract.

It is the same deadlock that, when the old three-year agreement expired at 11:59 p.m. Sept. 6, led 160,000 UAW members who worked in Ford plants to "hit the bricks," union slang for strike.

At 30 days, this strike's length is exceeded only by the 44-day strike that gained bargaining rights for the UAW at General Motors in 1937, the 104-day walkout against Chrysler in 1950 and the 118-day strike against GM in 1945-46.

In contract talks since the strike started, the big issues—money matters—have not been discussed. Periodically, each side asks the other if its position has changed on these issues. The answers have been "no."

Neither side has budged from its position on any topic except one, the relatively minor issue of apprenticeship programs. Ford made the move, giving proposals that respond to the union demand for changes in the programs.

"It is the first movement we've had," said Walter P. Reuther, UAW president. While the strike lengthens, problems intensify for some of the 160,000 strikers in the 25 states where Ford has facilities, particularly in Michigan where 90,000 of them live. Businesses, large and small, also have been hurt.

Near the massive Ford River Rouge complex in Dearborn, a Detroit suburb where about 35,000 persons work for Ford,

Heavy Docket At Muny Court

Bench of Judge Sterling Lamb, Municipal Court had a heavy docket Thursday with 30 cases recorded and approximately $1,000 in fines and bond forfeitures collected.

Four local citizens were called before the court on traffic violations. Marvin Ross Spangler, 44, Route 4, failed to appear on charges of having no "stay chains" on his trailer. He forfeited a $24 bond.

Bennie Jones, 61, Route 2, was charged with failure to yield right of way at a stop sign and violating the conditions of his driver's license by operating a car without automatic shift.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $15 plus costs on the first, and $25 plus $9 costs on the second charge. Judge Lamb suspended $25 of the fine.

Clifford W. Jones, 79, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to failing to stop for a stop sign. He was fined $15 plus costs.

Paul D. Wallace, 28, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to speeding 80 miles in a 60 mile zone for which he was fined $20 plus costs.

small businessmen are among those hardest hit.

Ford has about 20,000 suppliers with which it spends about $7 million a year. The strike affected them in degrees as varied as the type and amount of items or materials they supply to the nation's second-biggest automaker.

The Budd Co., which supplies Ford with more parts than any other firm, has laid off a few workers in Gary, Ind., 450 in Detroit and 1,800 in Pittsburgh, Pa. Ford is Budd's main customer.

Dana Corp., with headquarters in Toledo, Ohio, also makes Ford parts, but has laid off only 200 of its 15,000-member work force.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said the first month of the strike had cost it $1 million.

Trucking companies have lost business because Ford is not building cars for the truckers to haul. E. & L. Transport Co. said it has 500 drivers, mechanics and office personnel on layoff in Detroit and Lorain, Ohio. Automotive Transport Inc. in Detroit has about 425 on layoff, a spokesman said.

The strike also has drained the union's $67 million strike fund of $16 million in strike benefit payments of $20 a week to the unmarried striker, $25 a week to the ones who are married and $30 a week to those with spouse and children.

Wall Street Looks For Missing Notes

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City banks and financial institutions checked their securities lists today—looking for $1.7 million in missing U.S. Treasury notes that apparently were misplaced during a Wall Street bank transfer.

Police did not rule out the possibility of theft but were working on the assumption that the "easily negotiable" securities went astray in a mixup between one bank's messenger and another bank's clerk.

One of the notes is for $1 million and the others for $100,000 each. They are payable to the bearer and thus readily negotiable but one bank spokesman said that in practice it would be difficult for anyone to cash them.

The disappearance reported Thursday marked the third major loss of securities from a Wall Street institution within a month.

On Sept. 14 the investment firm of Hayden, Stone, Inc. listed the loss of $1.5 million in securities and a week ago police

'Forgotten' Inmate Complains To Guard

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Sharman Pue Dockery will be the last forgotten man in the Los Angeles County jail if Judge David Williams' plans are carried out.

Dockery, charged with arson, was locked up after undergoing mental examinations last January—and forgotten—until he was being held.

Williams heard of the 10-month incarceration and demanded Thursday a new procedure for prisoners certified for mental examinations. Later, after meeting with other judges, he said changes would be made. A hearing was set for Dockery, to answer the old charge that he set fire to an unoccupied house last year.

The notes reported missing Thursday belonged to the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

Superintendent Writes Series On School Program, Policies

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a series of regularly scheduled articles written by Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of city schools.

By FRITZ JACOBS
City School Superintendent

The opportunity to communicate with our school community through a regular newspaper column is welcomed. The school system is most anxious to report information regarding school program, policies, philosophies, and announcements to the public in a manner that will be authentic and free of rumor tendencies. We plan to do so through this regular type of news reporting.

As a beginning I would like to report on the opening of school and some of the statistical data that is of general interest to the public. School opened on Sept. 5, with 3,280 students reporting. This number has recently increased to 3,323 — the largest enrollment in the history of our school system. At the close of last school year enrollment was 3,218. Our new figure represents an increase of 105 since the close of last school year.

Ordinarily this would not be of great concern. However, this year we find ourselves absorbing this increase with six teachers less than we employed in 1966-67. This cutback was necessitated by the loss of an additional operating levy and has resulted in some overcrowded classrooms. It was also necessary to reduce programs such as Driver Education from the regular school day, elementary Physical Education, etc. It is our hope that this trend can cease and that the necessary programs will return to normal next year.

It was possible, though extremely difficult, to staff our schools this year. A nationwide teacher shortage exists and those districts unable to provide attractive salary schedules have found it necessary to influence some teachers who had retired or planned to retire to return to the classroom as well as encouraging others to teach one-half, five-eighths, and seven-eighths days. The competition in the area of teacher recruitment will become increasingly severe. We are indeed fortunate in Circleville to be reasonably well staffed at the present time. Every effort has been made to retain the essentials of a good educational program within the

Farmer Injured

An injury caused by farm machinery resulted in emergency care at Berger Hospital Thursday.

Harry Kern, 64, Route 2, caught his left hand in a pulley belt of a combine machine resulting in the fracture of his thumb and multiple lacerations. He was transferred to Grant Hospital, Columbus for surgery.

Treated and released was Brian Foster, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Foster, Knollwood Village, after he fell from a bed lacerating his right eyebrow.

framework of existing limited financial ability. Any further cutbacks will seriously effect our continued chartering by the State Department of Education. We have been able to hold the line at the present time and our existing program is within minimum standards.

Next week we will discuss the makeup of our staff, both certificated and non-certificated together with program offerings throughout the school system.

Violence Tapers in Truck Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Violence has tapered off in the steel truckers' strike, but an economic vise gripped steel producers and users in seven states.

Gov. George Romney of Michigan said, "We are prepared to put all the manpower necessary on the road to put an end to lawless and violent acts."

Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond P. Shafer ordered State Police Commissioner Frank McKetta to take a personal hand in directing reinforced patrols in western Pennsylvania, a hotbed of violence.

But the steel industry, which ships more than 50 per cent of its products by truck, was still feeling the economic pinch and other industries—from highway builders to grocery stores—were beginning to feel the affects as the strike closed off supply and delivery lines.

The Ohio Contractors Association said $154 million in highway projects were stopped and another $81 million were jeopardized. The western Pennsylvania Heavy & Highways Contractors Association said millions of dollars of construction projects were snarled and 4,000 tradesmen idled because concrete shipments were halted.

In Pittsburgh, sheriff's deputies rode shotgun to get bread delivered to a supermarket chain north of the city. Restaurants and hospitals at Cleveland, Ohio, say they're having trouble getting frozen foods and fresh meat.

The wildest strike by 10,000 to 20,000 independent truckers cut back steel production by 30 per cent last month, according to Iron Age magazine.

River's Lighthouse May Be Preserved

NEW YORK (AP) — The state's Hudson River Valley Commission has offered a ray of hope for the preservation of five old lighthouses along the river.

The old landmarks are now slated for demolition by the Coast Guard but the commission recommended Thursday they be acquired and converted for use as museums, research centers and park buildings.

The lighthouses are located at Tarrytown, Kingston, Saugerties, Hudson and Esopus Meadows.

Former Browns Player Calls Negro Conference

CLEVELAND (AP)—Former Cleveland Browns defensive back Walter Beach has called a statewide "black unity" conference for today and Saturday at Karamu House.

Beach said the purpose of the conference is to narrow the communications gap between the moderate and militant views in the Negro communities. The goal is to establish a statewide forum for dissemination of ideas and viewpoints on education, politics, culture, economics, youth and law, Beach said.

Literature circulated by Beach's organization says the conference is closed to news media and to whites.

Ford Strike Nears Record

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union strike against Ford Motor Co. reached its 30th day today, becoming the fifth longest national strike in auto industry history.

The strike has affected segments of the nation's economy. No settlement is in sight.

Labor contract negotiations that began 118 days ago, on July 11, have produced no agreement on any section of the contract.

It is the same deadlock that, when the old three-year agreement expired at 11:59 p.m. Sept. 6, led 160,000 UAW members who worked in Ford plants to "hit the bricks," union slang for strike.

At 30 days, this strike's length is exceeded only by the 44-day strike that gained bargaining rights for the UAW at General Motors in 1937, the 45-day strike at Chrysler in 1939, the 104-day walkout against Chrysler in 1950 and the 118-day strike against GM in 1945-46.

In contract talks since the strike started, the big issues—money matters—have not been discussed. Periodically, each side asks the other if its position has changed on these issues. The answers have been "no."

Neither side has budged from its position on any topic except one, the relatively minor issue of apprenticeship programs. Ford made the move, giving proposals that respond to the union demand for changes in the programs.

"It is the first movement we've had," said Walter P. Reuther, UAW president. While the strike lengthens, problems intensify for some of the 160,000 strikers in the 25 states where Ford has facilities, particularly in Michigan where 90,000 of them live. Businesses, large and small, also have been hurt.

Near the massive Ford River Rouge complex in Dearborn, a Detroit suburb where about 35,000 persons work for Ford,

Heavy Docket At Muny Court

Bench of Judge Sterling Lamb, Municipal Court had a heavy docket Thursday with 30 cases recorded and approximately $1,000 in fines and bond forfeitures collected.

Four local citizens were called before the court on traffic violations. Marvin Ross Spangler, 44, Route 4, failed to appear on charges of having no "stay chains" on his trailer. He forfeited a $24 bond.

Bennie Jones, 61, Route 2, was charged with failure to yield right of way at a stop sign and violating the conditions of his driver's license by operating a car without automatic shift.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $15 plus costs on the first, and $25 plus $9 costs on the second charge. Judge Lamb suspended $25 of the fine.

Clifford W. Jones, 79, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to failing to stop for a stop sign. He was fined $15 plus costs.

Paul D. Wallace, 28, Williamsport, pleaded guilty to speeding 80 miles in a 60 mile zone for which he was fined $20 plus costs.

small businessmen are among those hardest hit.

Ford has about 20,000 suppliers with which it spends about $7 million a year. The strike affected them in degrees as varied as the type and amount of items or materials they supply to the nation's second-biggest automaker.

The Budd Co., which supplies Ford with more parts than any other firm, has laid off a few workers in Gary, Ind., 450 in Detroit and 1,800 in Pittsburgh, Pa. Ford is Budd's main customer.

Dana Corp., with headquarters in Toledo, Ohio, also makes Ford parts, but has laid off only 200 of its 15,000-member work force.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said the first month of the strike had cost it $1 million.

Trucking companies have lost business because Ford is not building cars for the truckers to haul. E. & L. Transport Co. said it has 500 drivers, mechanics and office personnel on layoff in Detroit and Lorain, Ohio. Automotive Transport Inc. in Detroit has about 425 on layoff, a spokesman said.

The strike also has drained the union's $67 million strike fund of $16 million in strike benefit payments of $20 a week to the unmarried striker, $25 a week to the ones who are married and $30 a week to those with spouse and children.

Wall Street Looks For Missing Notes

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City banks and financial institutions checked their securities lists today—looking for $1.7 million in missing U.S. Treasury notes that apparently were misplaced during a Wall Street bank transfer.

Police did not rule out the possibility of theft but were working on the assumption that the "easily negotiable" securities went astray in a mixup between one bank's messenger and another bank's clerk.

One of the notes is for $1 million and the others for $100,000 each. They are payable to the bearer and thus readily negotiable but one bank spokesman said that in practice it would be difficult for anyone to cash them.

The disappearance reported Thursday marked the third major loss of securities from a Wall Street institution within a month.

On Sept. 14 the investment firm of Hayden, Stone, Inc. listed the loss of $1.5 million in se-

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Sharman Pue Dockery will be the last forgotten man in the Los Angeles County jail if Judge David Williams' plans are carried out.
